

FOREIGN ENVOYS TO CALL IN BODY ON HOOVER TODAY

Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador Will Head Members of the Diplomatic Corps.

PRESIDENT WEARS SOFT HAT TO CHURCH

Deference to Quaker Simplicity—Executive Contemplates Few Changes in Minor Offices.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—President Hoover went into his second week as Chief Executive today with a most of widely varying tasks claiming his attention.

Already the President has taken the initial steps toward carrying out some of the plans that were uppermost in his mind during the campaign. Of these, however, many of the details remain to be worked out, and some of the phases of the work incident to the change of administrations scarcely have been touched.

Beyond the major tasks, there are the difficulties surrounding the many lesser appointments the President must make, now that his Cabinet has been completed. Some 20 or 30 assistant secretaries and members of the diplomatic corps are to be selected. The Chief Executive already has made it clear, however, that he does not contemplate any widespread changes and that most of the vacancies to be filled are those of persons who desire to retire to private life and those that come through promotions or new assignments.

Prohibition Changes.

Another of the changes which the President outlined in his inaugural address, but to which he has been unable to devote but little time thus far, is the proposal to transfer to the Department of Justice many of the prohibition enforcement duties which now rest upon the Treasury Department.

Some of the Congressional leaders think that this will require new legislation, but no opinion yet has come from the office of the Attorney General on the subject.

Part of the President's time today was set aside to enable him to receive most of the 18 members of Washington's diplomatic corps, headed by Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador. One of the most colorful incidents since his inauguration, it follows a custom of the foreign Ambassadors and Ministers to call in a body to pay their respect to a new President soon after he has taken office.

Medicine Policy.

Mr. Hoover is continuing to show great interest in the developments in the Mexican revolution and has indicated that his administration will follow the policy of supporting the present government in that country. He already has authorized the sale of surplus war materials to the Mexican Government.

President Hoover yesterday devoted his first Sunday in the White House to worship, relaxation and the company of a small group of close friends. With Mrs. Hoover he motored in the morning to the small Quaker meeting house at Thirteenth and Irving streets where he heard a sermon on overcoming the obstacles of life through faith and divine grace, preached by Augustus Murray, the minister of his own church in Palo Alto, Cal. During the afternoon, he rested at the White House, read for a while and took a short automobile ride about Washington, and in the evening some of his old neighbors from 8 street were invited in for Sunday night dinner.

Dresses Informally.

The President was accompanied to the church by his son, Herbert Hoover Jr., and the latter's wife, his sister, Mrs. Mary Leavitt of Long Beach, Cal. Mrs. Hoover's sister, Mrs. Eugene Large of Palo Alto, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Requa of San Francisco, all of whom have been house guests at the executive mansion since the inauguration.

In respect to the tenets of his Quaker faith and their insistence on avoiding display or showiness, Mr. Hoover left behind him the high silk hat and formal morning clothes which form the customary Presidential attire for church attendances and instead wore a dark business suit and slouch hat.

The same lack of formality also characterized last night's dinner. For some time it had been customary for Mr. Hoover's friends and neighbors to drop in at his 8 street house for dinner on Sunday evening but last night they came at the President's invitation, as though he wished to assure them that this practice was not to be discontinued because he had become Chief Executive. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Kellogg and Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan.

REBELS HEAD FOR MAZATLAN

By the Associated Press.

NOGALES, Sonora, March 11.—Mexican rebels continued to march southward through Sinaloa today, headed for Mazatlan, and an apparently inevitable battle with Federal troops holding that strategic city.

Five thousand soldiers were declared by Gen. Francisco Borquez, rebel commander in Sonora, to be concentrating in Southern Sinaloa and marching for the attack on Mazatlan. Declaring these forces ample to rout Gen. Jaime Carrillo, Federal leader holding Mazatlan, Borquez overnight took 2,000 soldiers by train out of Southern Sonora to move eastward into Chihuahua. They were not needed on the Sinaloa front, Borquez explained, and were destined to join the rebel forces threatened with Federal attacks at Torreon and Durango.

Rebels Pass Through Quila. Quila, Sinaloa, early today marked the advance line of the southward marching rebels. They passed through there last night, singing as they marched. The point is 100 miles north of Mazatlan and 50 miles south of Culiacan, approaching which concentration point was Gen. Roberto Cruz with 2,500 cavalrymen to join the attacking column.

Gen. Fausto Tapete, rebel leader, has left Navolato, Sonora, with 300 soldiers, horses and supplies, headed for the concentration at Culiacan. He predicted the revolutionaries would be in Guadalajara, Jalisco, on the direct railroad route to Mexico City by April 1. A successful attack upon Mazatlan or the retreat from there of Gen. Carrillo, would open the way for a rapid advance toward Mexico City. The railroad at present is controlled by the Federals at Mazatlan.

Gen. Manzo, who arrived in Nogales, Sonora, late last night with troops which are being moved eastward in a quick shift of rebel forces, declared that Carrillo attempted to withdraw from Mazatlan several days ago. He found a railway bridge destroyed to the south, Manzo stated, and was forced to turn back to the gulf city.

Dispatches from Culiacan to the Nogales Herald said the state of Nayarit, south of Mazatlan, was up in arms, assuring the revolutionaries that if Gen. Carrillo retreated he would be forced to fight his way toward Mexico City.

REVOLUTION CUTS 'WHOOPEE' TRADE IN BORDER TOWN

Tourists Abandon Night Life Centers at Nogales, Mexico, Except Cabarets Near United States Line.

By THOMAS DAWSON,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, March 11.—This insurgent town where the churches celebrated Sunday mass yesterday for the first time in two years, eagerly awaits news from the west coast rebel army, under Gen. Iturbide, which is to make a frontal attack on Mazatlan, a key railroad town in the State of Sinaloa.

Gen. Jaime Carrillo, Federal, is in possession of the town with 2,500 men.

The rebel campaign, sweeping southward, has followed lines determined by the location of Mexican railroads. There are four major railroads from the border southward.

Rebels Take Part of Railroads. The west coast railroad, which crosses the border at Nogales, has been taken by the insurgents as far south as Culiacan, a distance of approximately 500 miles, by the revolutionaries.

The old Mexican Central Railroad, which crosses the border at Nogales and passes through Middle Mexico, has been taken by the insurgents as far south as Torreon, from which extend at least six east-and-west branch line railroads.

The two Eastern railroads which cross the border at Eagle Pass and at Laredo, respectively, are still controlled by the Federals.

Counsel General, representative of the Federal Government, at Nogales, expressed the opinion that the Government would crush the rebellion in at least two weeks, Vasquez said. There are 28 states in Mexico. Five of them are said to be in open revolt. These are Sonora, Chihuahua, Durango, Coahuila, and Sinaloa. There were 60,000 men in the Federal army on the eve of the revolution, but 15,000 soldiers have gone over to the insurgent ranks. That leaves a minimum of 45,000 with the Government, a preponderance of strength.

General Francisco Borquez, revolutionary leader, said that he believed hostilities would continue for a period of at least 60 days. In that length of time, he predicted, the rebels will have taken every significant city and town in the country.

Cabaret Business Brisk. A few sideliights on the revolution from the Sonora sector follow: Saturday night is usually the big "whoopie" night in Nogales, Sonora, but trade Saturday night was bad. Tables were deserted at the Club Royal and the Palais Royal.

Only the cabaret just across international street, the barbed-wired border line, did their usual quota of luncheon.

The town of Nogales, Sonora, consists chiefly of a main street of plaster fronts and stucco that runs between two barren mountains. High above the street one sees little cottages on the mountain side. Goats and burros abound in the streets.

There is an ultra-modern brewery operating seven days a week. There are dozens of Chinese groceries, and one of the sights of the town is the open-air town "commons." Dozens of crowded tables in a crowded side street—where one may dine on Mexican dishes for a few cents.

GOLTRA REFUSED BARGE REVIEW BY SUPREME COURT

Decision of Lower Federal Tribunals, That He Cannot Recover on Boats Seized, Sustained.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Edward F. Goltra of St. Louis was refused a Supreme Court review today of the decision of the lower Federal court that he was not entitled to recover 13 barges and four towboats which the Government had seized.

The barges and towboats had been leased to him by the Government as a common carrier, but he claimed that Goltra had been negligent in operating them on the Mississippi, the Government canceled the lease and took steps to recover possession of them.

Goltra asked a review by the Supreme Court on the ground that the lower courts had misconstrued the effect of a former Supreme Court decision. He insisted that the highest court had only passed on his right to recover the boats and barges pending a trial of the case on its merits.

Barges Operated by Federal Lines Since 1923 With Brief Exception. The 13 barges and four towboats were returned to Goltra and actually operated by him under order of the local District Court pending outcome of one phase of the extended litigation.

But the decision was against him, and since then they have been operated by the Federal barge line. The barges were returned to Goltra and actually operated by him under order of the local District Court pending outcome of one phase of the extended litigation.

REVERSES INSURANCE RULING ON MAN KILLED IN TORNADO

Judge Sale Holds Widow Is Entitled to $6000 From Husband's Employers.

Circuit Judge Sale today reversed a decision of The Missouri Workmen's Compensation Commission, which had disallowed the claim of Mrs. Florence Stone, 2999 Indiana avenue, in the death of her husband, Everett, a stationary fireman, who was killed while at work at the Blackmer-Post Pipe Co., 2801 Hereford street, during the tornado of Sept. 29, 1927.

Mrs. Stone filed a claim for $6000, to be paid over a period of 400 weeks, with the Commission, which, however, upheld the contention of insurance companies combating her action, that the tornado was "an act of God" and that the Blackmer-Post Co. could not be held responsible.

Judge Sale today held that Stone, who was crushed beneath a falling smoke stack and scalded by steam, also had no control over the situation, and since he met his death while at work, his widow is entitled to compensation.

FIRST CANADIAN MURDER CONVICTION REVERSED

Court of Appeals Frees Youth Awaiting Execution for Mother's Death.

QUEBEC, March 11.—For the first time in Canadian history a man found guilty of murder has been freed by a Court of Appeals. Gonzague Gilbert, 29-year-old Quebec youth awaiting execution after having been convicted of murdering his mother, was acquitted by the Court of Appeals, which set aside the verdict of the lower court. The justice failed to bring the jury into the evidence at the trial.

Mrs. Gilbert, the youth's mother, was found dead in her room. An analysis showed she had died of poisoning and that in the dregs of wine bottles in her bedroom there was poison.

First Governor of Montana Dies. HELENA, Mont., March 11.—Joseph K. Toole, 78 years old, first Governor of Montana after its admission as a State, died at his apartment this morning. He had been in ill health for some time.

Transferring grain from 500-ton Upper Mississippi barges to the 200-ton barges used on the Lower Mississippi, but a local elevator has announced that it will install the facilities on its own initiative.

This is considered likely to relieve materially the congestion of the grain rush at St. Louis, for the situation was seriously complicated last fall by difficulties in handling grain from the Northwest for export through New Orleans. The channel for the Upper River line operated by the Government to Minneapolis and St. Paul is clear of ice somewhat later, of course, than the Lower River line.

WOMAN KILLS PRIEST AFTER MASS IN CHURCH

Canton (O.) Mother Quarrels With Pastor Over Treatment of Daughter in School.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, O., March 11.—The Rev. Joseph A. Riccardi was shot and fatally wounded in a Catholic Church yesterday, just after the celebration of mass, by Mrs. Mamie Guerrier, a parishioner.

Most of the congregation had left when the woman approached the priest after the services. The two exchanged a few words. Then the woman fired five shots and Father Riccardi fell.

The dying priest told Prosecutor Harter that the woman had spoken to him of her 5-year-old daughter, Palmira, who was with her at the time of the shooting. He said she complained that the child had been mistreated at the parish school.

Mrs. Guerrier gave the same account of the conversation. An examination of the girl failed to disclose any evidences of mistreatment.

Bishop Joseph Schrems of Cleveland said he thought the woman was demented. She was held without bail.

When arraigned this morning Mrs. Guerrier pleaded not guilty to a first-degree murder charge and was held to the grand jury.

LENIN'S BODY STILL FLEXIBLE

MOSCOW, March 11.—The remarkable state of preservation in which the body of Nikolai Lenin, the late communist leader, has been kept ever since his death five years ago, was demonstrated today.

Prof. Vorobyov, chief embalmer of the former Premier's body, in the presence of a group of foreign newspapermen and representatives of the Foreign Office, opened the glass covered coffin in the Red Square Mausoleum, and lifting Lenin's head, gently flexed the ears and nose and moved the skin on the cheeks and jaw, thus proving the excellent state of preservation of the body. The demonstration was made to disprove rumors that petrification of the body had begun.

SUPREME COURT IN SESSION TO HEAR POCKET VETO ARGUED

Fate of Muscle Shoals and 119 Other Bills Rests on Tribunal's Decision.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Supreme Court remained in session today after delivering opinions, especially to hear arguments in the pocket veto case on which it is called for the first time in history to reach a decision.

The Court will decide the validity of pocket vetoes as applied by the President at the close of any session of Congress except the final adjournment every two years. For many years it has been the practice of the President to kill legislation objectionable to him which reached him less than 10 days before adjournment of the session by taking no action upon it, a practice generally referred to as a pocket veto.

The fate of the Muscle Shoals bill, which was pocket vetoed at the close of the first session of the last Congress, and of 119 other measures pocket vetoed from the beginning of the practice, were at issue, including the case of the Okanagan and other Indian tribes in Washington which was used to test the practice.

$50,000 COPY OF DA VINCI'S 'MONA LISA' IS STOLEN

Painting Is Taken From Birmingham Public Library Where It Was Being Exhibited.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 11.—A "Mona Lisa" said by experts to have been one of the most perfect copies of the da Vinci original, was stolen from the Birmingham Public Library between Saturday night and 3 p. m. yesterday.

The painting, the work and property of Mrs. Elizabeth Tinker Elmore of New York and valued by her at more than $50,000, had been on exhibition in the fourth floor parlors of the library since Thursday.

Mrs. Elmore discovered the loss when she entered Parlor A, where the canvas, unframed, occupied a center panel, Sunday afternoon. Thumb tacks, with which the canvas was attached to the wall, were scattered over the room. A rear door of the exhibition room was open, and the keys to the next room were hanging in the lock.

Mrs. Elmore painted the "Mona Lisa" in the Louvre in Paris in 1921.

MOTORMAN HELD IN FATAL CRASH OF TROLLEY AND AUTO

L. A. Schultz Accused of Criminal Carelessness in the Killing of Mrs. Emeline Hansen.

MISS NELLIE WALSH DIES IN BELLEVILLE

Hurt When Struck by Machine—Three Persons Injured When Car Hits Bridge on Weber Road.

A verdict of criminal carelessness was returned by a coroner's jury at Kirkwood today in the death last night of Mrs. Emeline Hansen, 45 years old, whose automobile was struck by a Manchester street car as she attempted to cross the tracks to turn into the driveway of her home, 801 Lockwood avenue, Glendale.

L. A. Schultz, 204 Prather avenue, motorman, gave $5000 bond and the case was turned over to the grand jury.

Mrs. Hansen's coupe was struck squarely by the car and she was dead when taken from the wrecked machine. Her husband, C. V. Hansen, is an engineer for the State Highway Department, and is also survived by a son, Carl, a student at Kirkwood High School.

Mrs. Hansen was a public stenographer and maintained offices in Clayton.

Woman Killed by Auto in Belleville When Waiting for Street Car. Miss Nellie Walsh, 56 years old, 1844 Highland avenue, St. Louis, was killed Saturday night when struck by an automobile while waiting for a street car in Belleville.

Miss Walsh and her cousin Miss Catherine Walsh, were standing in the street at 7400 Main street, when struck by an automobile driven by Roy Daugh of Belleville, Miss Catherine Walsh is at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis.

Three Thrown Into Gravel Creek After Auto Hit Bridge. Three persons were injured at 12:30 a. m. yesterday when they were thrown from their machine into Gravel Creek after the car struck the railing of a bridge on Weber road, in St. Louis County.

The injured are Charles Best, 119 Russell avenue, the driver, fractured ribs; Miss Adele Huch, 119A Arsenal street, laceration of the tongue and chin; and Edwin Hike, 2025 South Second street, cuts on head.

Lee Seeger, a watchman at the Al Paper Box Co., Thirteenth street and Chouteau avenue, suffered internal injuries and cuts of the head last night when struck by a machine in front of the factory. SUPREME COURT TO DECIDE ON WABASH STOCK DIVIDEND Hughes Urges Ruling on Whether Holders of "A" Securities Have Prior Claim on Funds.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Supreme Court consented today to decide whether holders of Wabash Railway preferred stock "A" were entitled to receive dividends equal to earnings which had been used for betterments, equipment of working capital, before holders of convertible preferred stock "B" and common stock could receive dividends.

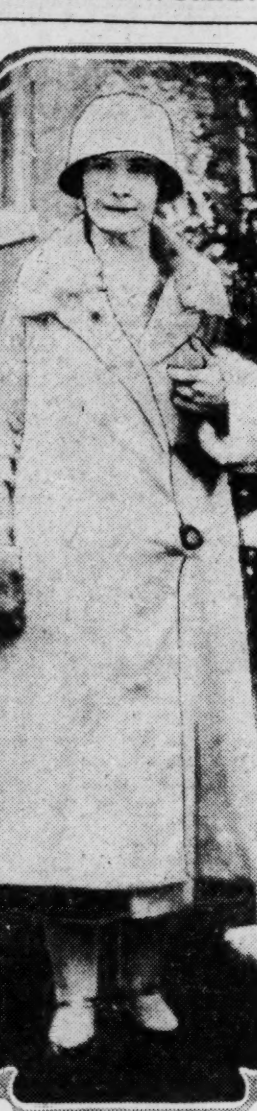

Declaring the question of great importance to the holders of railroad, industrial and other stock, Charles Evans Hughes urged the Court to pass on the question to prevent a widespread disturbance of property rights.

The decision of the Federal Circuit at New York City established a dividend credit of many millions of dollars in favor of the preferred stock "A" by holding that it must receive dividends which had been used over a period of years and had been used by the directors for working capital.

SCHOOLLEY CHARGE DISMISSED. Defendant Now in Penitentiary for Another Crime.

A charge of burglary in the second degree and larceny against Roy Schooley, Wellington attorney and convicted bank robber, was dismissed today because Schooley now is in the Missouri State Penitentiary serving a sentence for the more serious crime of bank robbery. He was taken to prison last Friday.

MISSING WOMAN

MRS. ELLA BRADY ESPINOS.

Her husband, who disappeared at Kirkwood today in the death last night of Mrs. Emeline Hansen, 45 years old, whose automobile was struck by a Manchester street car as she attempted to cross the tracks to turn into the driveway of her home, 801 Lockwood avenue, Glendale.

L. A. Schultz, 204 Prather avenue, motorman, gave $5000 bond and the case was turned over to the grand jury.

Mrs. Hansen's coupe was struck squarely by the car and she was dead when taken from the wrecked machine. Her husband, C. V. Hansen, is an engineer for the State Highway Department, and is also survived by a son, Carl, a student at Kirkwood High School.

Mrs. Hansen was a public stenographer and maintained offices in Clayton.

PAIR ARRESTED AFTER STEALING TAXICAB AND $4

Man and Woman Found at Hotel in Front of Which Was Abandoned Auto—They Confess Theft.

Robert Long, yellow taxicab driver, was held up at Fifteenth and Papin streets, at 11 o'clock last night, by two passengers, a man and a woman, and was robbed of $4, his cap and his car, from which he was ejected at Ninth and Spruce streets.

The taxicab was later found abandoned at 511 Elm street, and Leo Baum, 26 years old, and Pearl O'Neal, 22, a waitress, were arrested in a hotel there and identified as the robbers. They confessed, police reported.

Harry Guyot, 45, known as "Silk Hat Harry," a pickpocket, with more than 200 arrests, was captured by police last night in the basement of a saloon at 1501 Pine street which he had broken into. He made no statement.

Peter Pantanella, 17, Herrin, Ill., was arrested after he had entered the General Candy Co., 452 South Seventh street, through a window. He has served a reformatory sentence for burglary.

A shabbily dressed, unshaven man held up Samuel Kirshon and Leonard Daniel, clerks in the shoe store of Louis Kay at 4003 Chouteau avenue yesterday morning, and took $750 from a safe, $250 from Daniel and a watch, knife and chain from Kirshon.

Other holdups: Walter L. Probst, service car driver, 3022A Belt avenue, robbed of automobile and $10.75; Charles State, 900 South Fourth street, $110; Clarence Gower, 312 Bates street, $9; Herman Jones, 1623 Hickory street, $16.

A burglar who stole $5 and a watch from the home of Edward Laune, 4225 Sacramento avenue, dropped a glove in the yard. A burglar ran from the adjoining house of Ray Merriell, 4223 Sacramento, as the family returned home. Jewelry valued at $200 was stolen from the home of Elmer von Brunn, 6140 Columbia avenue.

Miss Mildred L. Mera, school teacher, 2733 Lindell boulevard, reported a wrist watch which she valued at $600 disappeared from her apartment a few minutes after her 4-year-old niece had been seen playing with it.

The skeleton was removed to Fendler's undertaking establishment at 744 Lenay Ferry road, pending the arrival of Mrs. Espinos' casket tonight.

TRUCK DRIVER IS CHARGED WITH CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS

Wilbur McLaughlin Held Under $10,000 Bond After Fatally Injuring a Man.

Wilbur McLaughlin, 21 years old, 1419 Dostrehan street, was held for the grand jury under $10,000 bond today after a coroner's jury returned a verdict of criminal carelessness against him in the death of Reids Dacus, 56, a laborer, 1230 Chambers street, who was fatally injured Jan. 19 when hit by a truck driven by McLaughlin.

Witnesses testified that the truck was moving at about 40 miles an hour at the time it struck Dacus when it struck Dacus who was attempting to cross. Dacus died Thursday at the City Hospital. McLaughlin did not testify at the inquest.

CIGARETTES A LAST TRIBUTE PAID TO 'WOODBINE WILLIE'

British Ex-Soldiers Attend Services for Chaplain Who Supplied Smokes in War.

LIVERPOOL, March 11.—Former soldiers crowded around the casket containing the body of the Rev. G. A. Studert Kennedy this morning and laid cigarettes where others laid flowers.

During the war Kennedy, who was chaplain to the King, was known as "Woodbine Willie" to thousands of Tommies to whom he endeared himself by frank talks, helpful advice, and an unfailing supply of cigarettes. His body was taken from the church here today in Worcester for burial. He died Friday of influenza.

MARRIAGE OF TWO WORKERS FOR MAYOR MILLER ANNOUNCED

Wedding of Walter C. Ploeser and Miss Dorothy Mohrig Took Place Last August.

An announcement of the marriage of Walter C. Ploeser, chairman of the Young St. Louisans Miller-for-Mayor campaign, to Miss Dorothy Mohrig, 3407A Giles avenue, secretary of the organization, was made by the bride's father, Henry C. Mohrig, a party at the home of Alan MacEwan, 1122 Liberty avenue, Saturday night. The marriage took place last August.

Ploeser said that announcement of the marriage had been withheld until after his return from Atlantic City, where, prior to entering the Miller campaign, he was occupied in organizing chapters of DeMolay, a junior organization sponsored by Masonic bodies.

Mrs. Ploeser formerly was a music teacher and playground supervisor. Although she and her husband worked side by side in the majority campaign, their marriage was unknown to any of their co-workers, many of whom were guests at the party at the MacEwan home, Saturday night.

Probate Judge Hodgdon TO TALK ON SEWER BUILDING. He Will Address Mass Meeting at Jennings and Natural Bridge Roads, Thursday Night.

Probate Judge Hodgdon of St. Louis County will address a mass meeting of persons interested in sewer construction, Thursday night, at St. Paul's School Hall, Jennings and Natural Bridge roads.

Seven sewer districts, including virtually all of the thickly populated communities of St. Louis County, have been organized under the Ralph Act of 1927 which has been subjected to criticism because of the broad powers of boards of supervisors. Amendments to the act have been offered in the present Legislature by Representative William W. Bamber. Actual construction has not been started in any district.

Thomas D. Cannon, 6400 Natural Bridge road, also will speak.

WIEGAND ESTATE ORDERED TO PAY $30,000 LEGAL FEES

Claims are for Services in Litigation Over Receivership for Standard Stamping Co.

Claims of two legal firms—Raschke & Goodwin and Forstet, Mudd, Blair & Habenicht—for fees totaling $30,000 were allowed against the estate of the late George Wiegand, president of the Standard Stamping Co., by Probate Judge Holtkamp today. Attorneys for the estate interposed no objection.

Members of the firm acted as Mr. Wiegand's counsel during litigation over a period of 17 months in Federal court which followed the filing of a receivership proceeding against the company by a stockholder, James L. Minnis. Mr. Wiegand was one of the officers named as defendants.

Minnis, former general counsel of the Wabash Railroad, owned about 45 per cent of the stock in the company. A receivership was placed in effect for a short time, but the litigation was settled when Minnis' interests were purchased by Mr. Wiegand and his associates.

MEMPHIS AFRAID OF A FLOOD

Predictions of rain in the lower Mississippi Valley, taken with the check in the fall of the Ohio River from Louisville to Evansville, increased apprehensions as to the high-water situation today.

The Mississippi here was three-tenths of a foot above flood stage, and F. W. Brisk, meteorologist, while deeming as yet to make a crest prediction, said that indications are that it will rise about 2.2 feet.

43 ON JAPANESE SHIP SAVED

Taken Off Steamer by U. S. S. Napa South of Guam.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The rescue of 43 officers and men, the crew of the Japanese steamer Bankoku Maru, near Kama Island, about 470 miles south of Guam, by the sea-going tug U. S. S. Napa, was reported today by the Navy Department.

The steamer sent out an SOS on March 7. Two days later the Napa found the Bankoku Maru. The vessel was a total loss, but there were no casualties.

Gassed While Working on Puzzle. With a partly solved cross-word puzzle on a table before him, Edward B. Scherman, 74 years old, a widower, was found unconscious at 8 a. m. today in his gas-filled room in the rear of a store at 5908 Southwest avenue. He was removed to City Hospital, in a serious condition. There was an open fire in the room and the man and the puzzle were found in the gas.

U. S. SAILOR IS KILLED IN CHINESE HOTEL FIRE

13 Others Lose Lives at Hong-kong — Seaman Missed Spread Sheet.

HONG KONG, March 11.—An American seaman, Kish, of the cruiser Memphis, was one of 14 who lost their lives today in a fire which destroyed the King Edward Hotel.

Kish jumped from a high window of the burning building to a sheet held for him by firemen and spectators but missed the sheet and struck the pavement instead.

A petty officer of the U. S. S. Nashville named Phillips, refused to make a similar jump and instead knotted two sheets together and lowered himself safely to the fire escape.

Gen. Chan Ming-shu, civil Governor of Kwangtung, jumped with his wife to sheets held under their window. They were injured slightly.

The fire started early in the morning and burned for more than seven hours. The hotel was one of the largest and most frequently patronized by tourists in the city. It was located near the waterfront in the heart of the British section.

It is thought the fire started on the ground floor of the hotel and crept up the main staircase setting the upper floors ablaze and cutting off means of escape.

A Mrs. Robson, an English woman, jumped from the fourth floor to the ground and was killed instantly. Her husband is missing.

RAILWAY EXCHANGE OFFICES ROBBED OF $328 AND STAMPS

Robbers Force Doors and Work Safe Combinations on Upper Floors of Building.

Robbers who opened two safes in offices on the upper floors of the Railway Exchange Building over the week end obtained about $328 cash and $17.80 in stamps. It was reported to police today. In each case the office door was forced and the safe combination worked.

At the Alfocorn Milling Co., on the twentieth floor, $23 and the stamps were stolen. About $300 was taken from the Egyptian Tils & Lumber Co. on the eighteenth floor.

E. PILCHER DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Former Simmons Hardware Co. Vice President Came to St. Louis With 50 Cents.

John E. Pilcher, who arrived in St. Louis from England with 50 cents in his pocket, and became star salesman and later first vice president of the Simmons Hardware Co., died today at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Myers, 4540 Lindell boulevard.

Mr. Pilcher, who was 54 years old, had been in failing health for three years. Death was caused by angina pectoris. He is survived by a son, Edward Simmons Pilcher, of Albuquerque, N. M., and two daughters, Mrs. Florence Allison of Los Angeles, Mrs. Alexander B. Pierce of Webster Groves and Mrs. Myers. The funeral will be held at the Myers home at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday.

A native of England, Mr. Pilcher came to St. Louis as a boy of 15 and got work as a clerk in a wholesale drug house. He worked there nearly three years and in 1883 took a job, not much better, but in his view more promising, with the hardware firm of Wilson, Levering & Waters. This firm, through later changes, became the Simmons Hardware Co. and Mr. Pilcher's association with it continued for 42 years.

Salesman in Stage Coach Days. He worked for five years as stock clerk in the hardware house, then got his chance to go on the road. Salesmen of the firm had declined to tackle the far Western field, and young Pilcher was sent out because no one else would go.

It was his job to sell the company's wares in the vast territory west of the Missouri river, and he went forth, equipped with a buffalo robe and a six-shooter, on what proved to be a successful trade trip. Visiting the widely separated points by stage coach, for 15 years he continued in this field, until railroads had penetrated the whole region and a corps of salesmen was required for the Western trade.

His western record established Mr. Pilcher's reputation as a salesman. In other sales territory, nearer to St. Louis, he showed the same ability, and this led in time to his elevation to the official circle of the firm. He was first vice president at the time of his retirement in 1905. This marked his virtual retirement from business.

MISS PEARL MARIAN RIESS.

CASE OF SPINAL MENINGITIS IN RICHMOND HEIGHTS SCHOOL

Students Undergo Physical Examinations After Edward Blumer, 11, Becomes Ill.

A physical examination of children at the West Richmond Public School, 1313 Boland drive, Richmond Heights, was made today as the result of a discovery Saturday that a student was suffering from spinal meningitis.

The student, Edward Blumer, 11-year-old son of John Blumer, a concrete worker of 7710 Harter avenue, was removed to Children's Hospital and his home was quarantined at the order of County Health Commissioner Obrock. It is the seventh case of spinal meningitis reported to county authorities within a month.

W. M. Burton Arrives in U. S. NEW YORK, March 11.—Dr. William M. Burton, one of the four new directors elected last week by stockholders of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, returned from Italy today. He had learned of his election by wireless. Dr. Burton was accompanied by Mrs. Burton.

For the last two years he made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Myers. He was vice president of the Business Men's League, predecessor of the Chamber of Commerce, and president of the Coliseum corporation, for the period when the business organization had control of that building.

SUICIDE OF STUDENT LAID TO OVERWORK

Miss Pearl Riess of Washington U. Suffered Nervous Breakdown, Parents Think.

The parents and friends of Miss Pearl Riess, 18-year-old junior at Washington University, who swallowed poison in her room at McMillan Hall on the university campus, think her act was prompted by a nervous breakdown caused by overwork.

The young woman, only child of Alfred D. Riess, an attorney of Red Bud, Ill., died at Barnes Hospital Saturday, shortly after she was found unconscious by her mother. An autopsy performed yesterday disclosed that death was due to poison.

The mother had motored from Red Bud during the afternoon to see her daughter but found the room locked and a note on the door which read: "Do not disturb—sleeping." Getting no response to her knocks, Mrs. Riess consulted other students and obtained a pass key from the janitor. Miss Riess was unconscious on the bed, apparently having swallowed the poison a short time before. Attempts to revive her were unsuccessful and she was rushed to the hospital.

Miss Riess was a graduate of Hosmer Hall and represented that school in an intermediate oratorical contest at Columbia, Mo., three years ago. She won a medal and a scholarship to the University of Missouri, as a result of the contest, but elected to enter Washington in order to continue vocal and piano studies at the Kroeger School of Music.

According to her father, who came to St. Louis yesterday, Miss Riess was a brilliant and precocious student. She had planned an operatic career and was deeply interested in musical activities at the university. She was accomplished for the women's glee club, sang in the university choir and did some concert work.

M'DANIEL BEGINS PRELIMINARY CAMPAIGN WORK

Democratic Nominee for Mayor Plans Committee to Co-operate With Regular City Organization.

IGOE MEMBER OF BOARD OF STRATEGY

Republicans Not Contemplating Strenuous Fight for Miller Previous to Election, April 2.

The Democratic City Committee and the Republican City Committee will meet tomorrow afternoon to lay plans for the municipal election, which will take place three weeks from tomorrow, April 2.

Many Democratic leaders believe that former Circuit Attorney Lawrence McDaniel, who was nominated by the party for Mayor in last Friday's primary, can defeat Mayor Miller, the Republican nominee. Republican workers, however, are convinced that Miller will be re-elected.

Mayor Miller went away for a rest Saturday, and although it was announced then that he would be back in three or four days, his secretary said today he would not return until the end of the week.

Looks to the Silent Vote.

McDaniel is busy fixing his finances and has had numerous visits and conferences since Saturday. He is working on the formation of a campaign committee which will co-operate with the City Committee. Asked to tell why he was confident he would defeat Miller, although the city ordinarily has a big Republican majority and has not chosen a Democrat as Mayor since 1905, McDaniel said:

"Because of the big silent vote, which did not enter the primary, but will be for me; because of Republican dissension due to the fight between Miller and former Mayor Kiel; because many persons feel Miller pulled fast about his full strength in this primary; because of the big expenditures made for Miller's nomination; because the people want a change and want a minority party in office as a sort of auditor."

Only 54 per cent of the registration of 248,951 voted in the primary. Of the 133,166 votes cast the Republicans polled 169,350 and the Democrats the unusually small number of 18,316, indicating considerable Democratic participation in the Republican contest, which likely was for Kiel's benefit chiefly. Miller defeated Kiel by 13,509 votes, and McDaniel's plurality was 7803, which was more than the combined vote cast for his two opponents.

Expect Draft From Kiel Forces. Some Democrats are hopeful that resentment against Miller among the more pronounced Kiel factions will help get Republican votes for McDaniel. They are pointing out that Miller's re-election might spoil the political future of Kiel leaders like Collector Koehn and Circuit Clerk Schmol. Of course, they are not anticipating open disaffection of Republican leaders but a drift from the ranks. Offsetting this condition, Republican executives say, is the traditional ability of the G. O. P. to forget its primary fights and offer a united front in elections. Kiel has urged Republican harmony, but the practical politicians do not expect him to exert himself working for Miller, who castigated him in the campaign.

Chairman Mestras of the Democratic City Committee announced that McDaniel, former Congressman William L. Igoe, who was the nominee for Mayor in 1925 and lost to Miller by only 3100 votes; John J. Nangle and other party leaders would meet with the city committee tomorrow as a sort of board of strategy.

"McDaniels is going to be the next Mayor," said Chairman Mestras. "The people want a change. The Republicans have had a lot of dissension but the Democrats have a stronger organization than before and harmony. There are more Democrats registered now than formerly, because of the Smith campaign last year. The fact that few Democratic ballots were cast in the primary means nothing because many Democrats voted for Kiel, especially in my ward, the Seventh."

The Republican City Committee is not contemplating a strenuous campaign. The management will be in the hands of the chairman, Park Commissioner Pape, who was a Miller lieutenant in the primary contest. "The committee is a unit now in support of Miller," Pape said today. "We feel sure the city wants Miller again."

Report From Labor Unions Barred. The Central Trades and Labor Union yesterday defeated, almost unanimously, a resolution calling for a report from the Legislative Committee as to the attitude towards labor of the nominees for Mayor and Aldermen. Many unions in the city had endorsed Kiel's candidacy and only a few voted in favor of Miller. Speakers at yesterday's meeting charged that members of many unions, which had been for Kiel as organizations, did not aid him with their votes. Other delegates said it was not to labor's best interest to take sides

BUYERS OF MOONSHINE BLAMED FOR GANG RULE

The Rev. M. A. Jones in Sermon Deplores Lawlessness of Respectable Citizens.

"We ought never to ask whether a law can be enforced," said the Rev. Dr. M. Ashby Jones, in a pulpit discussion of prohibition at Second Baptist Church yesterday. "Force is provided only for the criminal class. The vital question for us is whether a law can be obeyed."

"Is this prohibition law so unwise and unjust that obedience to its provisions will rob us of something necessary to our civilization, or impose upon us burdens greater than we can bear? Let us face the issue. Is there anyone here who could not obey this law? Suppose it were proved that cocktails and highballs are harmless, and drunken parties innocent amusement. Would it be too much to ask that we sacrifice these innocent amusements in order to put out of business the gangsters of America, and to restore the sovereign authority of our Government? In itself it is perfectly right for one to drive one's car across Kingshighway, and one has a natural right to do so whenever he pleases, but when a traffic light has been placed there, as an emblem of the authority of the Government, to drive in the face of a red light is to jeopardize the life of oneself and others."

"Let it readily be granted that if there were no prohibition laws there would be no bootleggers. But let it be quickly added, prohibition laws do not produce bootleggers. If all the citizens of this republic were willing to obey the laws of their Government, there would be no bootleggers. Bootleggers come in answer to the law of demand and supply. It takes a sufficient number of citizens willing to violate the law of their land, to bring bootleggers into existence. The army of rich and arrogant bootleggers pursue their murderous warfare in the midst of our civilization, because they are supported by the respectable and prosperous citizens of this country, who demand their drink at the expense of our civilization. Let us honestly face the truth, that every cocktail served at my lady's dinner party, or highball passed in jovial comradeship at the club, helps to perpetuate the rule of the gangster in our American cities."

"President Hoover, in his inaugural address, was not speaking to the gangster, bootlegger and racketeer, whose crimes have made the name of America a hissing and a byword among the nations, but to the large number of law-abiding citizens who supply the rewards and stimulate the crimes which these men commit. He is practically saying to those who serve cocktails and highballs at dinner parties and clubs, 'You, by the hands of lawless men, are supporting gangsters and stimulating them to their outbreathing crimes.' We cannot ignore this serious charge made by the Chief Magistrate after solemnly taking his oath of office."

MONKEYS KILL 250 CANARIES AND WRECK ANIMAL SHOP

Escape From Cage and Slay Rare Parakeet and Six Fantail Goldfish.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 11.—Two monkeys released themselves from their cage in a downtown animal store yesterday and before their escape was discovered they had wrung the necks of 250 canaries and a rare parakeet and killed a half dozen fantail gold fish.

A policeman who saw one of the monkeys in the act of slaying the parakeet in a display window forced the door open and saw turtles crawling on the floor through a layer of bird feathers, frantic songsters heaving their wings in terror against the walls, gold fish wriggling on counters and a large baboon working hopefully on the door of his cage, which had been partly opened by the monkeys. One old parrot, the tail feathers of which had been torn out, cursed monotonously as he walked a narrow shelf.

One of the monkeys submitted peacefully and was soon back in his cage, but the other hurled bird cages at his pursuers and was taken only after he had become engrossed in the task of pulling the tail feathers from a celluloid parrot.

Henry Bartels, owner of the store, said the damage would amount to several thousands of dollars.

WAR NURSE'S HUSBAND, WED A WEEK, HURT IN AUTO CRASH

John R. McLean, Who Married Kathleen Burke Peabody, in Serious Condition.

By the Associated Press.
SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 11.—The honeymoon of Kathleen Burke, war-time "Angel of France," and John Reginald McLean was interrupted yesterday by an automobile accident in which the bridegroom was seriously injured.

McLean suffered a fractured skull and his bride was slightly injured when their chauffeur, James Irwin, attempted to pass a truck on the highway and collided with an automobile driven by J. Herbert Evans of Mather, Pa.

Mrs. McLean, who was the widow of Frederick F. Peabody, millionaire collar manufacturer of New York, married McLean here a week ago. Some 18 years before they had met in France while he was an officer in the A. E. F. and she a war nurse.

TWO MEN ADMIT KILLING DRUGGIST IN STORE HOLDUP

No Witnesses Found to East St. Louis Murder, but Police Get Confessions
From Suspects.

The murder of Charles Ladrick, East St. Louis druggist, who was killed a week ago Sunday in resisting a holdup, was solved early yesterday when two men confessed to East St. Louis police. No one had seen Ladrick killed. A neighbor had heard two shots and had seen two men run from the store, but could not give a description.

The confessed slayers, Jess Wyatt, 20 years old, and Otto Morgan, 24, were arrested Friday on suspicion when Detectives Robert Sweeney and Samuel Strautz, canvassing the neighborhood, learned they had been out together the night Ladrick was killed. A revolver was found in Wyatt's room.
It had been cleaned recently.

Wyatt and Morgan were questioned constantly from the time of their arrest Friday. Morgan, who had acted as lookout, was the first to admit his part. Several hours later, near midnight Saturday, Wyatt confessed firing the two shots which killed the druggist.

Never in Trouble Before.
Wyatt, a slight youth who had never before been in trouble, but never could keep a job, lives at 1111A St. Louis avenue, two blocks from Ladrick's drug store, at 1401 Missouri avenue. Morgan, a laborer for the gas company, lives at 25 North Fourteenth street.

Wyatt and Morgan told police the holdup was not planned in advance but resorted to on impulse in hope of obtaining money to spend at a dance in Madison. They spend after the killing and got no money, but went on to the dance.

"This would be a swell night for a stickup," Wyatt, in his confession, says he told Morgan. "I was driving by Ladrick's store after obtaining gasoline for an automobile borrowed from a relative of Morgan. They parked the car around the corner and walked back."

Finds Man in Store Alone.
"I looked in and saw no one," Wyatt says in his confession. "I left Otto outside and walked in.
The druggist was standing at his prescription counter, and didn't see me until I was within five feet of him. I said, 'This is a stickup, put up your hands.'"

"I tested he reached for his hip pocket. I fired twice and ran out."
Wyatt's bullets struck Ladrick in the abdomen and heart, killing him outright.

The following afternoon Wyatt returned to the store to buy a paper which carried an account of the killing. He told the clerk, "I see some robbers killed a man here

MAN STABBED IN APARTMENT OF FORMER FOLLIES GIRL

William Mahoney Found Wounded
After Hollywood Drinking Party at Cosmo's Home.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 11.—
William Mahoney, 37 years old, said to be a son of Police Inspector Patrick Mahoney of New York, was mysteriously stabbed early today in the apartment of Lenore Cos-nova, former Ziegfeld Follies girl, culminating an all-night drinking party, according to a police report.
No arrests have been made.

The stabbing was said to have climaxed a fist fight between Mahoney and Mitchell Harris, stage actor.

"We had an argument," Harris told police. "I don't remember what it was about. I hit Mahoney.
He hit me and I faded out of the picture. When I woke up, they told me an ambulance had been there and had taken Mahoney to a hospital. They told me he had been stabbed."

Detectives reported they were confronted by two women accusing each other of the stabbing. Cora Mahoney, who said she was the wife of the wounded man, charged Miss Cosnova with the stabbing.
"She stuck him like a pig," the woman said.

"Cora Mahoney stabbed him," the actress said.

Officers who were summoned to Miss Cosnova's apartment by an anonymous telephone call reported they found the place in disorder and the room littered with empty bottles.

D. W. ROSS, BANK EMBEZZLER,

TO GET HEARING FOR PAROLE

Former Finance Deputy Has Served Three Years for Robbing

Night and Day Depository.

Donald W. Ross, former Special

Deputy State Finance Commissioner, who is serving two sentences aggregating 10 years for embezzlement of funds from the defunct Night and Day Bank, will receive a hearing on a parole before the State Penal Board April 9.

Ross has served three years and two months in prison, which, under the merit system, is equivalent to one of the five-year sentences he received. In applying for a parole, he states the punishment has been sufficient to accomplish the state's reform desired." Ross states further that his wife and 12-year-old son, living in Kansas City, need his support.

Ross was charged with embezzling $170,000 from the Night and Day Bank, after he was placed in charge of the bank subsequent to discovery of defalcations by Arthur O. Meininger, cashier. He was dictated in 1922, but the case was not affirmed by the Supreme Court until Dec. 23, 1925, and he entered prison a few days later.

STAGE, NEWS PAPER REPORTS

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., March 11.—

The Cleveland News in a copyrighted article, today says that the late Avery Hopwood, playwright, shortly before his death, completed an autobiographical novel picturing the American theater as a monstrous institution which destroys its followers mentally and morally.

The novel, is said to be in a safe deposit box in New York, where the author's mother, Mrs.
Jule Hopwood, who died March 1, had placed it in the expectation of submitting it to publishers.

The novel is described in the News as painting the American theater as a "fascinating and horrible idol that draws people into its flaming maw and devours them, or throws them out destroyed mentally, morally and physically broken."

The story, which centers around the rise of a young dramatist, is said to reveal only thinly the identity of those celebrated in the theatrical world whom Hopwood attacked.

M'CANSE QUILTS GAME

POST FOR RADIO WORK

He Will Have Charge of Broadcasting Service on Scenic Beauties of Ozarks.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 11.—

Keith McCause of Mount Vernon, Commissioner of the State Game and Fish Department for the last four years, has resigned, effective April 1, to become director of an Ozark radio broadcasting service sponsored by the Pierce Petroleum Co. of St. Louis.

Resignation of McCause and his acceptance were announced by Gov.
Caulfield, yesterday afternoon.
The Governor said the resignation was a surprise.

The broadcasting service to be directed by McCause will deal with scenic beauties and vacation advantages in the Ozark region. The Pierce Co. has been building a chain of tourist hotels in the Ozarks. The broadcasting will be done from station KMOX, St. Louis.

McCause was appointed game commissioner early in the Baker administration, succeeding Frank H. Wielandy of St. Louis, who had begun the development of the state park system. During McCause's administration, the number of state parks has increased to 14 and five additional fish hatcheries and 13 auxiliary game refuges have been established.

During the four years, wardens of the department made 5839 arrests for violation of game laws.
Reports of the department show that about 17,400,000 fish from the state hatcheries were placed in Missouri streams and lakes in the four years.

McCause was a member of the national committee on wild life legislation, which aided in the campaign for passage of the act for creation of sanctuaries for migratory birds, and he is a member of the uniform legislation committee of the Southwestern Association of Game and Fish Commissioners.

$15,000 Robbery in New York.

NEW YORK, March 11.—

Burglars entered the basement of a Fifth avenue dress shop early yesterday, opened the safe and escaped with approximately $15,000. A policeman discovered the burglary when he found the door of a millinery shop on the fourty-second street side of the building open. The burglars had, entered the millinery shop, cut a hole in the floor, dropped to a washroom in the rear of the George Block dress shop, and traversed the corridors to the shop office.

NEW METHOD OF COLD

TREATMENT EVER

MORE POPULAR

Vapex is widely accepted as the modern way to keep free from colds and to stop a cold at the start. No dosings—bothersome and often dangerous. No fuss. Just put a drop on a handkerchief and breathe the vapor that is released. Instant relief. Your head clears and congestion is broken up.

Vapex has been tested widely.
Discovered during the war while influenza was at its height, these same chemicals kept laboratory workers entirely immune to the disease. Analyses later proved conclusively that the vapor of Vapex kills the germs of common colds.

Vapex is so easy to use. And it is pleasant. Many persons are using it daily to keep free from colds.
One application on your handkerchief lasts all day, even increases in strength for several hours. Insist on the genuine in the little square dollar bottle, containing 50 treatments, and the package with the green triangle. It may be expensive to experiment with an imitation!
Vapex is distributed by E. Fougere

WASHINGTON, March 11.—

President Hoover accepted some Democratic advice today from Senator Copeland of New York. "The Senator, who is a physician, called at the executive offices and remarked that the temperature was rather high. Mr. Hoover promptly agreed and opened wide one of the three big windows of his office."

Later the Senator expressed his opinion that the President seemed to be in fine physical condition, but appeared tired by the strenu-

REED AGAIN ASSAILS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Speaks at Testimonial Dinner Following Return to Kansas City "For Good."

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 11.—Addressing 600 persons assembled at a testimonial dinner Saturday night in honor of his homecoming, former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, in a lengthy address, made a renewed attack on the League of Nations. He also assailed the eighteenth amendment.

"Because we abhor war," he said in part, "we are willing to trust the rate of this great republic to paper treaties signed by nations that never kept the faith in all the centuries of time."

"Thus we imperil all that our fathers fought for, merely because we follow in the wake of a human sentiment."

No Faith in "Scraps of Paper."
"He who trusts his nation's fate to scraps of paper that are burned up in the passion of every great conflict and that disappear as the shot of the first cannon, imperils and would ultimately destroy the most princely nation ever conceived by man's hand under the ordinance of God."

"The true friend of peace in this world is the man who proposes to make of America a nation so strong that all the battlements of the world cannot overthrow her, and then sets to the world the lesson that this great nation seeks no boot, levies no tribute and destroys no rights, but stands as the exemplar of justice and righteousness and has prospered better than all the warlike races of man."

Attacks Prohibitionists.
In regard to prohibition, Reed said he "remembered when the good temperance people went about rescuing the perishing, going into saloons and taking out the drunkards and getting them to sign the pledge and praying over them, for each one, they said, was a brand snatched from the burning."

"Today their successors are not boasting of those they took from the saloon into the white ribboned halls; they are boasting of those they put behind the bars of penitentiaries and jails and destroyed forever," he said.

"Shall we follow these propagandists? We forget where we are traveling. That is the danger of America."

The dinner was a part of Kansas City's official welcome. Mr. and Mrs. Reed returned Saturday from Washington "for good," to their spacious Cherry street home. The former Senator plans for the first time in many years, to devote undivided attention to his legal practice.

Besides Reed, speakers at the dinner were John H. Atwood, his former law partner, Dr. George H. Combs, Miss Violet Thompson, president of the Women's Committee in Industry, and Conrad Mann, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce. A message from W. H. Flat, president of the Kansas City Bar Association, was read by Judge C. A. Burney. Bishop Thomas Lillis gave the invocation.

Greeted by 6000 at Station.
On his arrival at Union Station, tears filled Reed's eyes as he told the crowd of 6000 that he preferred to come back here and live with his friends and neighbors than be King of any country on the face of the earth.

"When I first was elected to the Senate and went away, there was no one to tell me goodbye; there was no welcome when I returned," he said. "But I found my friends gathered to greet me one time, when I went to the convention in San Francisco and was kicked out."

"Then I undertook to get the nomination for the highest office in the land and failed ingloriously. Yet I found you all here at the station to take the sting out of my defeat, when I came back from Houston."

"And now I return as a private citizen with no honors and no flowers and you are here again with your flowers and your cheers. It is the finest thing a man can have—neighbors and friends who stand by him."

Atwood, in speaking at the dinner, declared that "of all the Missourians who have gone forth to win fame, none can compare with our Jim."

"I feel like taking off my hat to him every time I think of the things he has done for the salvation of his country."

Mann read a congratulatory letter to Reed signed by 300 citizens of Atchison, Kan. A grandfather's clock was presented to the Reed.

UNION FOR FIREMEN'S PAY RISE
Central Trades Body Indorses Request for $25 Increase.

The Central Trades and Labor Union yesterday indorsed the appeal of the city firemen for a wage increase of $25 a month.

The firemen recently obtained sufficient signatures to have their request placed on the ballot at the April election as an initiative proposal. The increase would affect 900 men and would add about $225,000 a year to the city payroll.

YACHT WITH SCIENTISTS SAFE Cornelius Crane Group Unreported for Some Time.

By the Associated Press.
SUVA, Fiji, March 11.—The yacht Illyria arrived here today from Rarotonga Island in the Cook group. All aboard were well.

The vessel will remain here 12 days.

The Illyria left Boston last October carrying a number of scientists to the South seas. It dropped out of sight for some time and there was some anxiety about it. The ship is under charter to Cornelius Crane of Chicago.

Laundry Prices at Glick's Have Come Down

Independent Joe Glick Is Responsible for the Reduction

(Maybe Others Will Follow)

Yesterday, I told you that I came to St. Louis without being invited. I took the personal responsibility for success or failure when I opened Glick's Laundry at 5190-5192 Delmar. High-class work and square dealing built up for me a substantial trade among the best people in St. Louis.

The price reductions announced today are made without consultation with any other person or group. These prices apply to Glick's Laundry. I don't try to control anybody else and I won't let anybody else try to control me.

St. Louis' Lowest Laundry Prices

These prices will win a victorious test of comparison in St. Louis, and meet the fair and reasonable prices which are enjoyed in other cities not controlled by price fixers.

I have set a new low standard of prices at Glick's Laundry. If others attempt to meet my prices, and lower charges throughout St. Louis come as a result of my blazing the way, I will have performed a greater service which will make me happier.

Yours very truly,

JOE GLICK

$600,000 ST. LOUIS GAS RATE RISE IS ARGUED

Both City and Company Seek Rehearing by Public Service Commission.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 11.—Arguments of attorneys for the City of St. Louis and the Laclede Gas Light Co., on their respective motions, to set aside the recent order of the Missouri Public Service Commission granting the Laclede company an increase in gas rates in St. Louis amounting to about $600,000 annually, and to obtain a rehearing of the case, were submitted to the commission this afternoon.

Arguments of both sides are confined largely to points submitted in the original hearings before the commission. City Counselor Muehler of St. Louis has indicated that if the commission order is not modified the city will carry the case to the courts for review.

The company originally asked for an increase in rates averaging about 18 per cent, which would have increased its annual revenues approximately $1,400,000. In its order issued Jan. 17, the commission reduced the valuation of the gas department of the Laclede company by $1,500,000, to a new rate-making base of $47,800,000, and ordered the company to file a new schedule of rates that would yield a return of not to exceed 7 1/2 per cent on the $47,800,000 valuation.

The commission reduced the minimum charge for gas from 11 to 9 cents a thousand cubic feet, but increased the minimum monthly charge from 50 cents to 75 cents, making virtually all of the increase fall on the small consumers. The former minimum charge covered the first 500 cubic feet of gas used; but the new charge covers only the first 300 cubic feet of gas, resulting in a larger increase than the bare difference between the old and new minimum rates. The company has not filed the new schedule, pending action on the rehearing motions.

MAIL RECEIPTS FALL BECAUSE FEBRUARY IS A SHORT MONTH

Having One Business Day Less Than Last Year, Decline of 1.81 Per Cent Is Shown.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Due to the fact that there were only 23 business days in last February and 24 in February a year ago, postal receipts in 50 selected cities showed a decrease of 1.81 per cent, the totals being: $29,992,224.27 and $30,546,872.22, respectively. Postmaster-General Brown announced today.

Receipts at 50 industrial cities decreased 4.49 per cent, the totals being $3,325,942.29 and $3,482,382.60, respectively.

The three cities reporting the largest percentage of increase in the selected field were: Minneapolis, 11.62 per cent; Denver, 8.63 per cent; Worcester, Mass., 5.71 per cent.

In the industrial field the three leaders were: Phoenix, Ariz., 42.49 per cent; Waterbury, Conn., 22.99 per cent; Reno, Nev., 18.25 per cent.

DIES AFTER FIGHT OVER WOMAN

Utah Engineer Supposedly Killed by Blow on Chin.

By the Associated Press.

OGDEN, Utah, March 11.—Edward A. Spellman, an engineer employed in the construction of the Echo Dam at Coalville, Utah, is dead and Dan Rowlands, employee of a can company, is held under $10,000 bond as a result of a midnight encounter between the two in a downtown hotel here as the annual convention of the Utah Cannery Association was coming to a close.

County Attorney Samuel E. Blackman said his investigations showed that Rowlands accused Spellman, who is said to be known also as Stillman, of attacking Mrs. Lawrence Russell, wife of a fellow can company employee, and the accusation led to words and finally a blow on the chin, following which, a few moments later, Spellman died. Spellman came from Denver a year ago. His widow in Denver was notified of her husband's death.

Robert Cones in Wisconsin Reformatory Confesses Culvert Murder.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GREEN BAY, Wis., March 11.—Robert Cones, prisoner at the Green Bay State Reformatory, has confessed to the killing of Mary Lavery, a girl whose body was found stuffed in a culvert at Elkhorn last August. Earl H. Eklund, superintendent of the reformatory, announced today.

Despite the various accounts of the murder which Cones has given the police in the past two weeks, Superintendent Eklund said he believed the confession was the truth. Cones tried to shift the blame for the murder upon a number of supposed associates.

SUIT FOR $50,000,000 DECIDED AGAINST U. S.
Supreme Court Rejects Claim for Refund From Railroads for Carrying Mail.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Government will be unable to recover approximately $50,000,000 under a Supreme Court decision today fixing the time when increased pay granted the railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission for carrying the mails shall begin.
The court held the increase must take effect from the date the railroads filed their applications for increased pay.
Upon the application of the New York Central and other railroads, the Interstate Commerce Commission granted an increase in rates to the railroads for carrying the mails. After the Government had paid the increase to a number of roads, dalling it from the filing of the applications for increase, the Comptroller-General ruled that it should have dated only from the issuance of the Commission's order.
Under this ruling, the Government sought to recover approximately $45,000,000, which had been paid out covering the period between the filing of the applications and the issuance of the order, and sought to retain approximately $5,000,000 more which was due railroads provided the increase dated from the filing of the applications.
The New York Central and other railroads, contesting the ruling of the Comptroller-General, won in the Court of Claims, and the Government appealed to the Supreme Court.

BEATEN FOR ALLEGED ATTENTIONS TO GIRL, 6
William Gordon Rescued From Child's Father and Two Companions; Taken to Hospital.
William Gordon, 26 years old, 1823 La Salle street, was severely beaten yesterday afternoon by three men, after he is alleged to have induced the 6-year-old daughter of one of the men to accompany him to the railroad yards near Carrie avenue.
Martin Dooley, a railroad watchman, saw Gordon being kicked and beaten by the men, and rescued him. Gordon was taken to City Hospital and treated for fractured ribs and a possible skull fracture, and then locked up on a peace disturbance charge.
Subsequently Fred Rohlfing, 629 Pope avenue, reported to police that he saw his 6-year-old daughter, Dorothy, accompanying Gordon to the railroad yards. Rohlfing summoned Charles Bock, 6115 Prescott avenue, and Oliver Dunn, 702 Pope avenue, and they followed Gordon and the child to the yards, where Gordon is alleged to have taken the girl into a clump of weeds. The beating followed.

Nobile Lays To Ice Form Of Gas

Commander of Ill-Fated Polar Dirigible Discusses Probable Causes of Airship's Sudden Descent Upon the Ice.

Gen. Nobile, having described in his first article the disastrous fall of the dirigible Italia to the ice on its return voyage from the Pole last May 25, goes into the probable causes of the crash in the second of his series. The official Board of Inquiry last week held Nobile responsible for the loss of the ship and eight of its crew. His series of articles, giving his own story of the disaster, covers the defense he offered at the hearings.

By GEN. UMBERTO NOBILE, Commander of the Ill-Fated North Pole Expedition of the Italian Dirigible Italia. (Continued, 1929.)

ROME, March 11. In the anxious days that followed the tragic fall of the Italia, I thought long over the cause. I made many theories. I discussed it and analyzed it to the bottom, but without arriving at any conclusion.

Nor can I say much else today. Nine months have passed since the catastrophe, and during all this time I have continued to seek, but have found nothing positive. Two facts are certain:

First, the dirigible was light, and all of a sudden it became heavy.

Second, the heaviness was rapid and considerable. The first idea that came to me was that it was an atmospheric disturbance. The dirigible had, perhaps, suddenly come into a zone of rarified air, the existence of which could be explained by the current of cold air noted by the meteorological office of Tromsø precisely at the time of the catastrophe.

Ice Crust and Open Valves. These theories, however, did not satisfy me at all, because an atmospheric disturbance so grave would probably have been accompanied by a strong movement of pitching and rolling, which did not take place. I thought that in traveling through the fog the airship might have become laden with ice above.

Without doubt such a possibility existed. During our three polar flights the phenomenon of the incrustation of ice had repeatedly occurred, often causing considerable concern. I had had occasion to verify weights of a ton and more.

The hypothesis of a heavy weight of ice can be admitted. Incrustations of ice, as I have mentioned before, were ascertained some hours before the fall. It is not to be wondered at if, in passing through the fog, the phenomenon should be intensified to the point of causing the crash.

I must, however, state that at the moment when the fall began I instinctively thought that a group of valves of gas had remained open. This was not impossible because, to eliminate an extra pressure noticed in the extreme compartment of the poop, I had had to open the valves of that compartment, and it might have happened that the ice forming on the seat of the valves had hindered their closing.

This is not a new phenomenon and could still occur, notwithstanding the measures taken by me to prevent it. This is why I had ordered Alessandro to mount to the top of the dirigible.

Rip in Bag Unlikely. I had also considered the hypothesis of a rip in the envelope. I pondered over this for some time—had treatment, notwithstanding all the care we have taken of it, had occurred to the envelope during the stay of the dirigible in King's Bay, where the snow accumulated in layers more than four feet deep on it and had to be swept off.

But after an accurate examination, I ended in considering it little probable that a rip in some worn part of the envelope should have happened after only 27 hours of flight. Yet before leaving I had attentively and repeatedly examined the envelope in every part, and I had also had it undergo a static test without noticing anything abnormal.

There was also the possibility that the envelope might have been torn by a projectile of ice or a splinter from the propeller, but I discarded this hypothesis as untenable because such a tear would have been signalled by a noise, and none was heard.

It could also be admitted that, owing to the vibration caused by the abnormal speed, a tube of metal framework existing in the stern of the dirigible might have been broken, piercing the envelope. However, I must confess that neither did this hypothesis satisfy me completely.

Finally, basing myself on the

It could also be admitted that, owing to the vibration caused by the abnormal speed, a tube of metal framework existing in the stern of the dirigible might have been broken, piercing the envelope. However, I must confess that neither did this hypothesis satisfy me completely.

Finally, basing myself on the verifications made by a member of the expedition, according to whom during the fall an increase of gas pressure was noticed, I also made the hypothesis that this increase had provoked the opening of the valves and therefore caused a rapid augmentation of weight through a notable quantity of gas that would have escaped.

Without doubt this might have happened, but there is yet to be explained the cause of the increase of pressure, and this can be done only by admitting that the tubes, made of material which served to admit the neutralizing air, might have been accidentally obstructed through the formation of ice.

Today, after reflecting months and months on this subject, it seems to me that the most probable cause of the heaviness of the dirigible must be found in a combination of two phenomena: A heavy deposit of ice, formed probably during the immersion of the cold dirigible into a zone of warmer damp air; and almost coincident loss of gas in the poop, provoked by the spontaneous opening of some of the valves.

However, generally the disaster has been attributed to the raging of the tempest, from which arose the pretext for one of the most insistent and malevolent accusations, viz.:

That notwithstanding the unfavorable atmospheric conditions, I had decided to venture to the pole only for the desire to arrive there exactly on May 24, the anniversary of Italy's entering the World War.

Though it may seem absurd that as head of the expedition I could subordinate the decision of a voyage of such scientific importance as that undertaken on May 23, to a simple historical anniversary, at the same, it is better once and for all to show the ludicrousness of that legend.

Didn't Consult Calendar. I am sorry, in fact, to have to confess that when we set out from King's Bay toward the north of Greenland, I knew the exact itinerary and program of the voyage we were undertaking. I did not think it at all necessary to consult the calendar.

Nor should this surprise one. In the anxiety of waiting at King's Bay, with the continued preoccupation for the safety of the dirigible, now on account of the snow, now of the wind, the days passed in a blur, and I had no time for anything but the expedition as soon as possible before the summer advanced.

On one point, this was expected to reduce excessively the useful load of the ship, and on the other to increase the risks and difficulties of the voyage either on account of sudden fog, or for the melting of the pack, if we should be compelled to descend and obliged to march on it till safety was reached.

The order given by me was very simple: Keep the dirigible and crew ready to start as soon as the atmospheric conditions should be favorable. On this Malmgren decided, basing himself on the reports and advice daily received from the Geophysics Institute of Tromsø, with which we were in contact.

The flight of May 23 was decided on receipt of a wireless from this institute, which suggested leaving as soon as possible by way of Greenland as soon as the local conditions of the weather at King's Bay permitted. Malmgren had fully concurred in this.

Criticisms His Critics. Naturally—as an Italian—I was glad that a fortunate coincidence brought us to the Pole precisely on the anniversary of our patriotic holiday, but from being contented on account of this fortunate coincidence and to think that I had deliberately precipitated the flight, compromising the success of the expedition for which undertaking I had thought long over and worked since May, 1926, there is a great difference. It would have been foolish and ridiculous to subordinate the decision of so dangerous a flight to the simple question of a date.

But the imagination of facile critics, of those who judge without reflecting, of whom Mussolini alluded to as "reminding him of those miserable shirkers in time of war who, in the cafes, in safety, spoke badly, without the slightest shame, of the way the war was being conducted."

There have even those who spoke of the insufficiency of the crew, without considering that at least seven of the 16 members of the expedition were tried men and used to the rigors of Arctic flights, and four were men chosen from the Italian Navy.

It also has been said that I took excessive advantage of the crew without reflecting that the crew of the Norge was not more numerous, and at the return, after 60 hours of flight to the land of Nicholas II, my companions were not at all fatigued.

Preparations Complete as Possible. There were a number of "ifs" and "buts." The catastrophe would not have happened if this or that had not been done.

This was the reason for my response with a smile to Malmgren, when, on the third day after our fall, under the red tent, he asked me:

"Do you think, General, that everything would have been all right if you had followed your idea to direct the course toward Mackenzie River instead of coming back to Spitzbergen?"

In fact, it was Malmgren who dissuaded me from that idea, but of what importance? The navigation might perhaps have been less stormy, but an accident might have happened just the same. Who knows if our destiny might not have been worse?

In fact, one may think of everything one can foresee, and provide for everything, but there is always something that escapes our calculation. There is the tide that, falling from the roof, kills the passenger. There is a screw loose in the engine of the locomotive which causes the railway accident.

It is useless to hide one's self. One may fly for 250 hours, as the Italia did, through dangers of every kind and overcome them happily, but suddenly after coming the instant in which a little thing, a trifle that is overlooked by our mind and senses, provokes a disaster.

Demonstrated Arctic Dangers. A disaster was needed so that the world should become aware that the Italia had flown for 124 hours over an immense desert of ice. A catastrophe was needed so that the civil world could see that between an aerial disaster in Italy and an aerial disaster at the Pole, the difference is only a matter of miles, and here it is only a possibility. The wireless had created illusions.

For the reason that greetings could be exchanged with the civilized world from the polar regions, many had forgotten that under us, around us for hundreds and hundreds of miles, was desert. They had forgotten that being obliged to descend signified almost certainly the end.

How many were put into action to rush to the rescue of the ship, wrecked? Ice breakers, aeroplanes, whale fishing boats. If we had had 100 kilometers farther north we would have been immediately lost, notwithstanding the enormous efforts made to rescue us.

Forewarn Possibility of Disaster. Before starting out on our enterprise did we know this? Yes, we knew, each one of us knew it. I had told every one clearly. Even before we left Italy, speaking with improvised words before the Rotary Club at Milan, concerning the difficulties and risks of our enterprise, I said:

"We feel absolutely secure and tranquil about our preparations. Everything that we could do to prepare for the undertaking in the best possible way has been done. Everything that could be foreseen has been provided for, even for the possibility of catastrophe."

Almost as if it were a prophecy of the fate that awaited us, I returned again to the idea, and added:

"Yes, we have foreseen also the possibility of a disaster, and of a complete failure. Our enterprise is dangerous, still more dangerous than that of 1926."

"This time we want to do more."

JURISTS DISCUSS ADHERENCE OF U.S. TO WORLD COURT

Committee Holds First Session at Geneva, With Noted Italian Presiding, After Root Declines Post.

SAFEGUARDS FOR AMERICA PROPOSED

Great Britain Would Give This Country the Right to Resign, if Changes in Covenant Meet Objection

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, March 11.—The Committee of Jurists, called to Geneva to revise the statutes of the World Court, held its first session today, one of the most important items on its agenda being a study of the question of the adherence of the United States to the Court.

Root, noted American jurist who has devised a formula for adhesion which will be examined by the committee, declined the honor of presiding and Vittorio Scialoja, distinguished Italian jurist who cooperated with President Wilson at Paris in formulating the covenant of the League of Nations, was elected president.

Sir Cecil Hurst of Great Britain presented a memorandum, the gist of which was that the United States would specifically be given the right to resign from the Court any time that it desires and that the United States could withdraw if it found changes made in the League Covenant not to its liking.

The jurists tackled the American membership problem at the very start of the session by having read the Root formula which Root explained briefly along the lines previously indicated. He voiced his belief that agreement would be reached on specific cases as to whether an advisory opinion should be asked or dropped.

Study the Kellogg Note. On the suggestion of President Scialoja, the jurists then studied the Kellogg note with reference to the possible changes in the Covenant and modifications in the rules of the Court. The president then asked his colleagues whether any way could be found to give the United States satisfaction on these points.

Sir Cecil replied with the suggestion about the privilege of resignation being safeguarded. Other members thought that granting the United States the right to vote on any proposed amendments to the Court would clear away the difficulty over modifications in the statutes. Still others advocated the inclusion of a resolution that the doctrine enunciated by the Court in a recent case would go a long way to satisfy the United States. By this doctrine, which involved Russia, the Court can give the United States the right to vote on any proposed amendments to the Court would clear away the difficulty over modifications in the statutes. I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of the people, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely passing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Shiloh Revisited.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A FEW days ago I drove through Shiloh Park, where the bloodiest battle between the armies of the west was fought in April, 1862. The battlefield resembles a cemetery, as it is well named. Almost 50,000 men fell in those terrible two days, and there is not a stone in the Mississippi Valley that has not monumented them. Some of the monuments, such as that of the Daughters of the Confederacy, are more than heroic—they are beautiful.

It saddens me driving around over those pleasant slopes to recall that within the last 12 years we have lost many more thousands of young men on the battlefields of Europe, where we are engaged in building more memorials. Senator Borah says this terrible method of settling disputes goes on because the world is run by a few men who ruthlessly sacrifice humankind to their own selfish ends and ambitions. He says the World War was like that, nor was it the fault of any one or two countries. He says the people everywhere dread war and would make any sacrifice to avoid it. They are powerless to do so because the handful of people whose ends are served by war exploit their passions and render them hot with hate before they realize it.

That is true. After we have had one of those emotional spasms we go back to a place like Shiloh and consecrate it with memorials. Meanwhile the young men who died there are powerless to ask why they died. Slavery has been got rid of in all but seven limited areas upon earth without bloodshed except in the United States. To get rid of it history, a war from which much of the South has not yet recovered. How many of us pay any attention to the obvious truth which Senator Borah has just uttered? He does not say so, but seems to imply that if the war-making power were reposed in peoples instead of their rulers political parliaments, and those to whom war means fame or fortune, we would have peace on earth in a hurry. It is likely we would.

Why not abandon empty gestures like the Kellogg treaty, which cannot be seriously discussed anywhere with the assurance that everybody will keep his face straight, and reposes the war-making power with the people who have to go to the Shilohs. Gettysburgs, etc., and eternally sleep there? C. M.

McDaniel for Vice-Mayor.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
SINCE the Democratic party in St. Louis is a negligible quantity in the city election, may I suggest that we compromise the situation by making Mr. McDaniel Vice-Mayor?

This would accomplish a double objective: (1) It would give the minority party representation; (2) it would give St. Louis the best cornerstone-layer, municipal gladhander, howdeydoer, after-dinner story teller, political cheer leader and municipal Santa Claus in the world, leaving the self-satisfied "boy from Joplin" to take care of the serious business of the City Hall.

No? Well, let us look at it negatively. Without any such compromise, Mr. McDaniel will simply disappear from the picture. We need him, his rollicking humor, his robust outdoor laughter. We need him as vice-Mayor.

DEMOCRAT.

An Argument for Annexation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I HEARTILY agree with Hugh K. Wagner and Adela J. Nielsen in their views on annexation. The borough system of local government would be the most expensive that could be imposed on the taxpayers. Out here in the "country" we have a great number of incorporated towns functioning under separate Mayors, Fire Chiefs, Police Chiefs and numerous other officials of various ranks. Also the school districts, a dozen or more in number, with a separate superintendent for each district, and in addition a County Superintendent of Schools. Take into consideration also the courthouse over at Chippewa, packed like sardines in a box, with officials and their clerks and you can realize how costly such a plan as the borough or metropolitan plan would be.

No city can expand and become great without the necessary territory, and this can only be accomplished by taking the matter before the people of the whole state. The sooner those that are fostering the expansion movement realize this, the sooner will annexation become a fact.

COUNTYITE.

A Discrepancy in Weighing Machines.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I SHOULD like to ask just why we have to pay for a weights and measures department that does not function. Today I got weighed in a 10-cent store downtown and weighed 166 according to the ticket. Then, as I had been deceived before, I thought I would try a well-known drug store. So I reached there in about 15 minutes and weighed only 162.

I want to know which is right and why the wrong one is allowed to charge us for false information. The 10-cent store ticket also had the wrong date on it.

AN OPENING TO THE WORLD COURT.

The informal negotiations concerning the modification of the fifth reservation of the United States, which now stands in the way of our participation in the Permanent Court of International Justice, are proceeding to a conclusion which offers bright hope that a favorable agreement may be reached.

The meeting of the Council of the League of Nations last night agreed upon the procedure to bring the United States into the court. The committee of jurists to revise the World Court statutes is meeting today in Geneva. Under the action of the Council it will consider a formula for the rejected reservation, which Elihu Root has submitted, and will report to the Council in June.

Mr. Root's formula provides substantially that when the United States objects to the Council's asking for an advisory opinion from the World Court in a matter in which the United States is a party or claims an interest, there shall be an exchange of views, and if the difference cannot be ironed out, the United States is free to withdraw from the court. This basis of agreement has been practically approved by the members of the Council. Practically all the representatives of the nations in the Council have expressed an ardent desire for a satisfactory agreement, and their view that the way is open for that conclusion.

Of course, the United States Senate must approve. But the number of irreconcilables in the Senate has diminished, and the Root formula meets the vital objections that were brought up in the Senate. The situation has changed. Public opinion now is more insistent upon our participation in the World Court. Mr. Hoover approves it. The Root formula practically covers the vital point in the original reservation. There is reason to believe that if the Council of the League accepts it the Senate will not refuse to ratify.

DR. SIMON CAN SMILE.

Dr. Simon is fortunate in that in his hour of defeat he can summon his scholarship to solace him. He knows how Miltiades, whom the Greeks once hailed as their "deliverer at Marathon," was left to die miserably in prison. They wearied, too, of Aristides. The Just, whom they banished and who, when summoned by dark Pluto, was without means for honorable burial. How they exalted Themistocles, who gave Athens her navy and her walls and saved the day at Salamis, only in the end to be cast out. So, the good doctor, whom the populace has rejected, is in high company, and knows it and can smile at the town and the Town Club.

FIVE KINDS OF PENITENTIARIES.

William J. Mackay, who is Detective Inspector of New South Wales, in Australia, stopping in St. Louis on his world tour of police-method investigation, told how last year in his country all but eight of the automobiles stolen were recovered.

Inspector Mackay told of a few other things. For one thing, he explained that in his country they have five kinds of penitentiaries: one for first offenders, one for second offenders, a third for men guilty of sex crimes, a fourth for criminal insane, and still another for hardened criminals. That is a penal system long advocated by criminologists, of course. But the Inspector said something else. Police officers in Sydney are paid $6 a day. But, if single, they are provided with barracks; if married, the Government pays their rent, gas, electric and telephone bills. And after 20 years of service they are retired on full pay.

We wonder if this treatment of police officers, assuring them of adequate support after a career of public service, does not have something to do with attracting the type of men who are capable of recovering all but eight of the automobiles stolen in Australia in a year's time.

SINCE THE ARMISTICE.

The latest volume in Winston Churchill's history of the World War is entitled "The Aftermath." It deals with the period from the armistice to Locarno. The British author criticizes Woodrow Wilson severely for opposing Clemenceau and Lloyd George, "by whom he was always worsted," though he concedes that Mr. Wilson was actuated by the noblest motives.

That Wilson was beaten in the "Battle of Versailles" is history. That he was inspired by the highest purpose is history. That the French Premier and the British Prime Minister were inspired by vengeance and the lust for spoils is history.

Indeed, the history of European diplomacy since the armistice has been largely a series of efforts—like that of Locarno—to retrieve the defeat of Woodrow Wilson and undo the victory of Clemenceau and Lloyd George.

In the current issue of the weekly magazine "Time" a footnote to the review of national affairs refers to the fact that ex-President Coolidge telegraphed "The St. Louis Globe-Democrat" which originally sponsored the idea of a summer retreat for legislators on the success of that measure in Congress. Yet "Time" prides itself upon its accuracy.

TOM TAGGART.

Few American politicians have so successfully played the role of Warwick as did the late Tom Taggart, for so long Democratic boss of Indiana.

He never succeeded in making an Indiana man President, nor Hoosier has entered the White House since Benjamin Harrison. But Taggart did make Thomas R. Marshall Vice President, and he did it by a strategic desertion of Champ Clark at Baltimore. Twenty years before he had spectacularly won for another Indiana man, Thomas A. Hendricks, a vice presidency under Mr. Cleveland. He made United States Senators and Governors of his State. Mr. Bryan always associated Taggart epithetically with Murphy, Guffey and Sullivan, but he was really not like the city bosses. He was truly and omnipotently rural, a born ringmaster among political showmen like none other in his time. He usually stood for the ideal that a public man should be above reproach, and the men whom he elevated conformed to that standard. No man lifted up by him was ever disgraced, as the Republican Governor McCray was a few years ago.

Tom Taggart made Indiana a great force in American politics, something she can hardly hope to do without him. The proprietor of French Lick Springs, he was far removed from the Partisanism which swept Indiana during the Ku Klux era and to a degree sweeps it today, but he always rode whatever waves came in, serene, smiling, and immensely popular even among Republicans. Whatever the complexion of the State government, French Lick remained undisturbed. It had behind it a character as typical of America in Taggart's time as any boss that politics has known.

REGULATING THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

Nothing much has been heard of the Public Service Commission regulatory bill that City Counselor, Muench drafted and caused to be introduced in the Legislature a few weeks ago. This bill undertakes to impose some restrictions upon the Commission in the matter of fixing valuations of public utilities and the rates they are to be permitted to charge the public.

One provision the Legislators should not lose sight of is that which would require the Commission in making a rate-base valuation to set out plainly the weight given to various elements of value, such as original cost, reproduction cost and going value.

And in the case of an allowance for "going value" the Commission would be required to state specifically the reasons for making the allowance. In a recent case affecting St. Louis the Commission gave the Laclede Gas Light Co. an allowance of more than $5,000,000 for "going value" without offering any explanation to justify the figure, and as Mr. Muench has pointed out the gas consumers are expected to pay the company more than 7 per cent return on that item in addition to all the items of physical valuation.

In view of the record of constant increases in rates and valuations by the utilities that have sought them, we are sure the present Public Service Commission law the Legislature would perform a needed service for the people if it would revise the law to include the best of the restrictive measures proposed in the Muench bill.

THE RAPE OF ST. CHARLES.

St. Charles, Mo., is not unlike any other American community in the 12,000 class. It hopes to put on metropolitan airs now and then, and it is not so squeamish that it would blush to see a good girl show of the Earl Carroll sort.

So the stage was perfectly set when Ferris Zammer, 30-year-old impresario, camelhair overcoat, mauve spats, and colorfully worldly, came to St. Charles. Ferris was ahead of the "Charles Harris Varsity Scandals," a rollicking show if there ever was one, and he registered at the hotel as "Charles Harris and wife, Chicago, Ill."

Alas for the ambition of all communities of the 12,000 class to get into the big league! St. Charles fell for Ferris like a ton of brick. Even good people took him up, the press warmed up to him, everybody became expectant. "Charles Harris" Varsity Scandals, With Riotous Chorus of Beauties, put St. Charles on the qui vive. The most exclusive speak-easies in town opened their portals. Ferris advertised in the newspapers. The press was jubilant.

Then came the rape. The dapper young theatrical man came to St. Louis, and when he returned to St. Charles he was accompanied by the head of the local prohibition force. They went to Meyers' West End Buffet, where expectations of the coming show were particularly high, and when the bartender asked Ferris if the show was about due the youthful impresario, with a grand gesture, said:

"Here's my big show, and Jim Dillon's my leading man!"

Poor St. Charles! Humiliated, shamed, her confidence outraged, to say nothing of Federal charges against some of her trusting citizens, she sits on her hills stoopingly mortified. Meanwhile, the country which stoops to such despicable methods goes upon its way serenely. More laws, more sneaks, more soundreels, more agents provocateurs, more Government lawlessness. So on, as Justice Brandeis predicts, to anarchy!

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR MISSOURI.

The favorite automobile route between St. Louis and Memphis is through Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas to the Memphis bridge. There is no satisfactory substitute for it, since it is weather the roads of Kentucky are unsuitable and there is no satisfactory wet weather approach from the south to either the Cairo or Paducah ferries.

An opportunity for Missouri presents itself in this matter. The trip from St. Louis to the Memphis bridge has only one bad sector, that near Jackson, Mo. Otherwise the route from St. Louis to Memphis by way of Missouri and Arkansas is an all-weather route. It should be made so throughout. There is a heavy volume of traffic that would be grateful for such a route, and it is a traffic that Missouri ought to encourage. The reason there is no concrete highway through the hills at Jackson is understood to be disagreement as to the route of the highway at that point. If this is so, it is a grievous matter that should be ironed out with all possible speed.

HUMANITY AND BIG BUSINESS.

Owen D. Young, himself one of the finest examples of the modern business executive, makes the point that the morals of big business are improving. As a matter of expediency, if nothing else, managers of large corporations are becoming increasingly aware of their responsibilities. This is true, not only as to rights of stockholders, but also as to the welfare of employees.

There is before us a report of the Pennsylvania Railroad which illustrates the point. Under a pension system established in 1900, the railroad paid out in 1928 the sum of $6,083,540 to supernumerary employees. All officers and employees are automatically retired at the age of 70, and at the present time the pension rolls carry 9059 names. The amount of pension paid is one per cent of average earnings in last ten years of service. As a supplement to the pension system, employees contribute to a voluntary relief fund, from which was paid benefits of $6,230,953 in 1928. These benefits are paid in the event of death, sickness or accident as well as in the form of superannuation allowances. The railroad pays expenses of administration and maintains a staff of 180 physicians and surgeons whose services are available to employees without cost.

In other words, the Pennsylvania Railroad, besides being in the business of transportation, is also in the business of caring for those who devote their lives to its service. Nothing, of course, could be more just; and the Pennsylvania is far from unique in this activity. At the same time, recognition of responsibility for injured and aged employees has not always been the rule. If Mr. Young is right, we may expect to find an ever-increasing solicitude for employees' welfare, and the eventual disappearance of the idea that corporations are soulless.

Awakening in the East

Events in India and China show that the non-white races are learning the lesson of the war, namely, that white civilization depends upon force for its supremacy; in India there is a growing sentiment for the use of force against British domination, while nationalist China is shaking off unequal treaties and taking its stand as a modern nation.

JOHN PALMER GAVIT in THE SURVEY GRAPHIC

THE so-called white races junked whatever they might be said to have had in the way of moral supremacy when in 1914 they flew at each other's throats and devoted their utmost resources to wholesale mutual slaughter and the destruction of the best products of civilization. It was a great show, and a great object-lesson, for the "inferior" peoples looking on, the "inferences" were not lost upon them.

"These white folks do not understand anything but force," the onlookers said, "it is their last argument. We must be governed accordingly." You can see with half an eye the results of that observing all over the East, most vividly just now in India and China. In both of those lands, though in different ways and with somewhat differing prognosis, things are going on deserving thoughtful consideration on the part of those who all these past years have been exploiting those vast peoples.

By our own behavior through the centuries we have given our approval to the use of force in our relations with what we have been pleased to call the "backward peoples." They have observed the material success which has attended this process, and the consequences upon themselves of their own weakness.

This is the whole obvious lesson to be read in what has been happening all over the world; in the intense nationalism almost universal since the close of the war; especially in the ominous awakenings in China and India. Almost everywhere the peoples have been the victims in one way and another of the force-process, and are now disposed to take hold of it by the handle and use it for their own benefit.

First, unity—growth of cohesion within against pressure from without. Revolt in any land against aggression from outside will depend, as to success and other things being equal, upon the measure of the existence and development of means in pursuit of that purpose. You can see this two-fold process at work in all directions. Turkey, with hardly more than a gesture of defiance, blew away the last vestiges of European domination. Great Britain had to relax her hold upon Egypt not because she wanted to but because she could not help herself. Erecarious at this moment is her remaining grip upon that land.

And now, India. The next two years—perhaps the next one year—will be of momentous importance in the relations between Great Britain and that immense empire which she has ruled for nearly two centuries. Scant and superficial as is the news that comes out of India, far behind-hand as we are in understanding of what has been happening there, we have been slow in recognizing that a great readjustment must be at hand in India. The outcome is impossible to foretell.

Outstanding is the return of Mahatma Gandhi to political activity. He is in frail health, but his determined spirit and immovable convictions may serve to hold back a cataclysm. Those, and absence of real unity among the Indian people.

It comes down to this: the Indian National Congress last December, by a vote of something like 1,400 to 900, largely at the instance of Mr. Gandhi, postponed until next January its intended movement to enforce virtual independence of India from British rule. Mr. Gandhi did his best to gain another year—until 1930. There was a strong faction demanding immediate action; no delay at all. The interval, according to the intention of the congress, must be used by Great Britain in working out radical concessions to the nationalist spirit in India. They will have to be pretty radical to stem the tide.

Mr. Gandhi's pledge to throw his influence and activity into the situation at the end of the prescribed period has reference only to non-forceful measures—his old familiar method of "non-co-operation." He will have nothing to do with physical violence. But the radical youth of India, non-resistant in theory as all Hindus are, have come to the conclusion that the white rulers of India understand and will yield only to force. Here at the outset is an internal dissonance in unity and purpose, which may enable Great Britain to compose the situation, for the time being at least, with relatively moderate concessions.

And there is China. Once before, I have quoted what a missionary in China told me, fully 30 years ago: "Keep an eye on China. Some day she will take leave out of the western book. Some day she will weary of being the world's door-mat. The Chinese people have an enormous capacity for learning. They will discover that the West has gained its ends by force. Then, look out! An awakened China may put all the rest of us to bed."

Already China seems to have unified herself. One sees no indication of the kind of social and religious discord which has kept and probably will continue to keep India under foreign rule. Almost overnight China is getting rid of the "unequal treaties" forced upon her by the West, and taking her stand free and potentially as mighty as any, among the nations of the world.

The world is entering upon a new phase. Barring the remote possibility of the ruin of all civilization in a new war, against which the intelligence of the whole world is working slowly and clumsily yet on the whole definitely; we seem to be moving toward a world society in which moral and intellectual values will have at last a chance. The day of seeking commerce with a gun is drawing to a close. Mankind is beginning to see that satisfied customers are after all the best market.

WASHINGTON, March 11.

THE problem of getting liquor, consigned to foreign legations, safely transported from Baltimore to Washington gives diplomats real difficulty.

More than one Ambassador has sent his truck over the road to the Maryland city for his Scotch, rye or wine, feeling he would be exceedingly lucky to see the vehicle return laden with a cargo.

For to hijackers the phrase "diplomatic immunity" is nothing but an empty expression. Their operations on the 40-stretch of pavement that separates the national capital and the neighboring metropolis have caused many anxious moments in several of the imposing residences along embassy row.

The expression "embassy liquor" is one of magic to the wet element of Washington. True, "embassy liquor" is something that one hears a whole lot in conversation, but seldom is privileged to see. Nevertheless, it holds a wide appeal, and has been the incentive for several daring holdups of foreign trucks.

THE other evening we listened with the keenest interest as a foreign newspaperman told of the difficulty his Ambassador had in getting his consignments through safely.

The reporter had just returned from a ride with a big shipment of liquor. Although he was working on a tip that the truck would be waylaid by hijackers, the trip was made without difficulty. Nevertheless, he admitted that he got a tremendous thrill out of his assignment.

It was not so long ago that hijackers stopped a truck and failed to make a hit, haul only because they lost their nerve at the crucial moment. After stopping the truck, one of the hijackers jumped into the seat of the driver. He pressed his foot on the starter, but the engine failed to start. Again and again he tried, but in vain. The driver had, in killing his engine, kept his wits about him and severed a vital connection.

TRAVEL on the road was becoming heavier as the hijackers worked on the engine. Finally one could stand the gaff no longer and started for his car. The other followed.

And the driver and guards proceeded without further trouble to Washington.

One of the most colorful figures in Washington and the man to whom the Canadian legation entrusts this mission is a Scot by the name of Jack Lamont.

In Firing Position

THE LOVE CLINIC. By Maurice Dekobra. (Payson & Clarke.)

THIS won't do! Here we have paid out $2.50 of our hard-earned money for Dekobra's latest box of literary tricks, in the belief that the fragile commandment would not only be smashed, but utterly pulverized by this highly civilized thrills to millions in 12 languages. Want's his "Madonna of the Sleeping Car" banned, and didn't he write a book about "The Thirteenth Lover"? Thirteen of 'em. Fire on fire! And what do we get for our money? By actual count we get only three (3) actual breakages and a couple of mild fractures for $2.50, whereas two bits each would be excessive.

But, on second thought, perhaps we are wrong. Perhaps it is not actual breakages that our timidly wishful spiritual hearts desire so much as bendings, if you get the idea, and it must be granted that Dekobra is a clever bender in this special sense. The way he can heat up that poor old brittle commandment and twist it about is well calculated to send the perpetually adolescent reader into a cross-eyed swoon. Maurice himself seems to know his parsnips right well, as the last five words in the following description of an ardent lady will show:

"She is one of the ten thousand who have never known retreat before pleasures in platons, eccentricities on the alert, and the sensuality in firing position."

There you are—"the sensuality in firing position," which is not quite the same as actually firing, as even a moralist will admit. Ready! Aim—but no carnage! Perhaps we get our money's worth, after all!

There is a little magazine called "Argosies" published in St. Louis and now on sale in the city, that deserves the good will and patronage of our readers, not only for its present intrinsic merit, but, what is more, for the potentialities in the movement of which it is the voice. It is not improbable that book collectors might do well to invest a handful of small change in copies now selling at 25 cents. Such stocks sometimes go up surprisingly, regardless of Federal Reserve Boards and call rates. Readers of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine have already learned of the Blue Lantern Inn at North Commercial alley and of the group of young writers, artists and musi-

D'ARTAGNAN and his three Boy Scout friends of medieval France, Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, if those were their names, live-and breathe and rush to do more than their quota of daily good deeds in "The Iron Mask" given at Loews this week. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., the Scout Master, D'Artagnan, so who the others are doesn't matter very much for Doug, the premier aviator of France, is always on the jump playing pranks on the nobility with his rapier, vaulting into the middle of second-story windows and, eventually, prying the Iron Mask from the face of Louis XIV and restoring that unhappy monarch to his rightful throne. "The Iron Mask" is a typical Fairbanks picture with massive sets and thousands of extra people. The story, as told in celluloid, with occasional audible and poetic remarks by the star, is not very interesting but it is beautifully done and sticks very closely to Dumas' theme of One for All and All for Fairbanks.

Love Finds a Way.

"Chinatown Nights" at the Ambassador Wallace Beery gives up cleaning enough to give a waiting public how a big Irish boss really runs things in the dance halls and other temples of virtue on the lower East Side of New York. Really is a tough bird who makes the Chinamen and the police of the neighborhood eat right out of his hand and probably he would still be running that section of the city if Florence Vidor, a proud debutante from way up town, hadn't dropped into his dive and made him love her. Even after Florence came it took Mr. Beery the better part of the next five or six reels to realize that his place among the tofs of Park avenue but a murder or two and some unwarranted activity on the part of the coppers finally stir him to action and he leaves Chinatown that on his back, after, it's an exciting and interesting film of its sort and Beery and Vidor and the rest of the cast carry on continuous stream of conversation. For "Chinatown Nights" is an even 150 per cent snappy.

Of Making Many Books

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

In Firing Position

THE LOVE CLINIC. By Maurice Dekobra. (Payson & Clarke.) THIS won't do! Here we have paid out $2.50 of our hard-earned money for Dekobra's latest box of literary tricks, in the belief that the fragile commandment would not only be smashed, but utterly pulverized by this highly civilized gentleman who dispenses poetic thrills to millions in 12 languages. Wasn't his "Madonna of the Sleepin' Car" banned, and didn't he write a book about "The Thirteenth Lover"? Thirteen of 'em, first!

And what do we get for our money? By actual count we get only three (3) actual breakages and a couple of mild fractures for $2.50, whereas two bits each would be excessive.

But, on second thought, perhaps we are wrong. Perhaps it is not actual breakages that our timidly spiritual hearts desire, but ideas and it must be granted that Dekobra is a clever bender in this special sense. The way he can heat up that poor old brittle commandment and twist it about in well calculated to send the perpetually adolescent reader into a cross-eyed swoon. Maurice himself seems to know his pampers right well, as the last five words in the following description of an ardent lady will show:

"She is one of the ten thousand who have never known retreat before pleasures in platons, eccentricities on the alert, and the sensuality in firing position." There you are—the "sensuality in firing position," which is not quite the same as actually firing, as even a moralist will admit. Ready! Aim—but no carnage! Perhaps we get our money's worth, after all!

There is a little magazine called "Vagaries" published in St. Louis and now on sale in the city, that deserves the good will and patronage of our readers, not only for its present intrinsic merit, but, what is more, for the potentialities in the movement of which it is the voice. It is not improbable that book collectors might do well to invest a handful of small change in copies now selling at 25 cents. Such stocks sometimes go up surprisingly, regardless of Federal Reserve Boards and call rates. Readers of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine have already learned of the Blue Lantern Inn, the Egyptian Commercial alley and of the group of young writers, artists and musiclans who forgo their there to reshape their worlds a little "nearer to the heart's desire." One hears rumors of high talk down there about unwieldy matters, and of better things. "Vagaries" is the public mouthpiece of that group, and it is issued by "The Alley Publishers" at the Inn.

Following is the "Roll of Authors" for the March-April number now on sale:

V. S. (Vernon Stueffelt); L. C. (Leon Contristable); V. C. (Vernus Claystone); A. V. (Andre de Valle); H. N. Jr. (Harry Niemeyer Jr.); Chick (Frank Hof); F. H. I. (Frederick Henry Ingalls); H. R. (Herbert Priesen); L. H. C. (The Lord High Chancellor); H. R. (Hogarth Riverme); G. C. (Gerome Chambers); W. R. (William Reis).

These late platoon cuts by William Reis and Leon Contristable and a cartoon by Frank Hof. The pleasing makeup was designed by Jerry Kling.

ARMISTICE. By R. H. Mottram. (The Dial Press.)

The author of "The English France Trilogy" and "The English Miss" here collects sixteen sketches dealing with his experiences in the World War. The writing is excellent, as might be expected; but there is not a thrill in the book. An atmosphere of profound melancholy clings about the low-toned pictures Mottram draws from a memory that has hallowed nothing about the great conflict—not even such as bendings, if you get the idea, and it must be granted that Dekobra is a clever bender in this special sense. The way he can heat up that poor old brittle commandment and twist it about in well calculated to send the perpetually adolescent reader into a cross-eyed swoon. Maurice himself seems to know his pampers right well, as the last five words in the following description of an ardent lady will show:

The Week's New Films

By NIE

DARTAGNAN and his three Boy Scout friends of medieval France, Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, if those were their names, live and breathe and rush to do more than their quota of daily pool deeds in "The Iron Mask" shown at Loews this week. Douglas Fairbanks is the Scout Master, D'Artagnan, so who the others are doesn't matter very much for Doug, the premier swordsman of all France, is always on the jump playing pranks on the nobility with his rapier, vaulting into the saddle, leaping into second-story windows and, eventually, prying the iron mask from the face of Louis XIV and restoring that unhappy monarch to his rightful throne. "The Iron Mask" is a typical Fairbanks picture with massive sets and thousands of extra people. The story, told in celluloid, with occasional subtle and poetic remarks, is the war, is not very interesting but it is beautifully done and sticks very closely to Dumas' theme of One for All and All for Fairbanks.

Colleen and she romps through the film in great fashion.

So Does Everybody Else.

FREDERICK BRENNAN, former St. Louis newspaper man, has written the scenario and dialogue for "The Ghost Talks" at the Fox. It wasn't much of a story the movie magnates handed to Mr. Brennan to work over into a screen play but once he got into it he provided a lot of bright and entertaining lines for the characters to speak and the thing is fairly amusing and entertaining. "The Ghost Talks" is a farce, the first of that type of full length all-conversation pictures to be made for the screen. It has a serio-comic plot involving a band of crooks, a detective who is a ghost, and a detective who stumbles into a solution of a crime after stumbling over everything else. Charles Eaton and Helen Twelvetrees, a couple of youngsters new to the screen but who have had enough stage experience to make them excellent cinema performers, prove to be great movie finds.

AL TRAHAN AT THE ST. LOUIS

Shares Honors With Silverton Orchestra: Movie, "True Heaven." The St. Louis Theater has this week, the headline attraction being the Silver-Mask tenor of radio renown. However, one stage band being much like another, the particularly bright honors of the program go to Al Trahan and his versatile and amusing band as has been evinced over the local boards in a long, long time. The Kouns Sisters, harmony singers, have a distinctive act. Tina and Balfour are a dance team; some of their bits are exceptionally attractive, and some, unfortunately, in the so-called adagio manner, are not. The veteran Jean Bedini and Arthur open the show with juggling, and Bedini acts as master of ceremonies for the remainder of the bill.

The motion picture is "True Heaven," in which George O'Brien plays a British spy who surrenders to Lois Moran's German spy in British territory. We now know why the armistice was signed—to save O'Brien from a firing squad.

Owner of Woodburn Farm Dies. Special to the Post-Dispatch. LEXINGTON, Ky., March 11.—Dr. A. J. A. Alexander, 53 years old, owner of the famous Woodburn Farm near Versailles, and a member of a pioneer Kentucky family, died at his home last night following two major operations. Dr. Alexander was a friend of Woodrow Wilson. In 1905 he married Miss Kate Lee Followay of Kansas City, Mo. She and two sons, and a brother survive. Dr. Alexander had large real estate holdings in Chicago and Kansas City.

Flaming Youth at White Heat. C. L. Moore provides the week's entertainment of the week with "Why Be Good?" at the Missouri. Colleen is an honest young ship girl with narrow hips and a broad mind who loves to dance and wants to be thought of as a flapper. But when the boy turns out to be the son of her boss the next morning she has to take back all of her wise cracks in order to prove that, by the time the last reel rolls around, she is good enough to marry into the biggest department store circle in town. It's one of those snappy, peppy comedies written right to order for

THURSTONS BRING MANY NEW TRICKS

Magician and His Daughter Delight Youngsters With Pleading Mysteries.

WITH a bag full of new tricks and a lot of the favorite old ones, Howard Thurston, the magician, arrived at the American theater yesterday afternoon and began a two-week stay. With him, this time, came his daughter, Jane, a 17-year-old miss, who dances prettily and does a little necromancing on her own hook from time to time when her dad pauses to catch his breath.

Thurston's slight-of-hand efforts are fewer this season but he has gone in heavily for illusions with balloons and automobiles and dozens of girls appearing from nowhere and then fading away in the same startling manner. The "sawing a woman in half" trick is still one of the most baffling of his stunts, however, and the young lady who floats about the stage and out over the heads of the audience is another old friend who delights the children and the grown ups.

Another stunt which mystified the crowd both at the matinee yesterday and at last night's performance was the way in which Thurston made three or four girls appear in a glass tank filled with water. This was one of his best tricks.

Jane Thurston made a welcome addition to her father's large company. When Howard Thurston finally gets into the box from which there will be no escape she is likely to become his successor and the only woman magician on the stage.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 11.

DIARY of a modern Peppy: Early with Meredith Nicholson, the Hoosier councilman, to wander through the Bowers, which has become a custom when he comes to town, and we bought a green, pink and yellow hook-on tie from a push-cart to send Kin Hubbard.

Then to a horologist with my desk clock which began merrily to run backward, and he tells me there are still old time clock winders in New York who go to private homes weekly to wind clocks. So walking about and picked up a lady's purse and returned it, but received scant thanks.

In the evening with Tom and Marie Hoger, from San Antonio, and Will Rogers to Dinty Moore's for corn beef and cabbage, and Will could eat but little for people who came over to inquire if he remembered them all, the liar, too.

NEW YORK's doormen are becoming so important they are being apotheosized in pen and ink drawings in fashionable periodicals. From a simple uniform of blue with cap to match, they have progressed to gorgeous costumes, caparisoned in gold and silver, and the way in which Thurston made three or four girls appear in a glass tank filled with water. This was one of his best tricks.

Jane Thurston made a welcome addition to her father's large company. When Howard Thurston finally gets into the box from which there will be no escape she is likely to become his successor and the only woman magician on the stage.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, March 11.

THE problem of getting liquor, consigned to foreign legations, safely transferred to Baltimore to Washington gives diplomatic difficulty.

More than one Ambassador has sent his car over the road to the Maryland city his Scotch, rye or wines, feeling he will be exceedingly lucky to see the vehicle laden with a cargo.

For to hijackers the phrase "diplomatic unity" is nothing but an empty expression. Their operations on the 40-mile stretch of pavement that separates the national capital and the neighboring metropolis have caused many anxious moments in the face of the imposing residences along the way.

The expression "embassy liquor" is one made to the west element of Washington. True, "embassy liquor" is something one hears a whole lot in conversation, seldom is privileged to see. Nevertheless it holds a wide appeal, and has been incentive for several daring holdups of sign trucks.

THE other evening we listened with the keenest interest as a foreign newspaperman told of the difficulty his Ambassador in getting his consignments through by.

He reported had just returned from a trip with a big shipment of liquor. Although he was working on a tip that the truck would be waylaid by hijackers, the was made without difficulty. Nevertheless, he admitted that he got a tremendous thrill out of his assignment.

It was not so long ago that hijackers peddled a truck and failed to make a rich haul only because they lost their nerve at a crucial moment. After stopping the truck, one of the hijackers jumped into the car of the driver. He pressed his foot on the starter, but the engine failed to start.

Over and over again he tried, but in vain. The driver, in killing his engine, kept his foot about him and severed a vital connection.

TRAFFIC on the road was becoming jammed as the hijackers worked over the engine. Finally one could stand the no longer and started for his car. The driver followed.

And the driver and guards proceeded about four hundred feet from Washington. One of the most colorful figures in Washington and the man to whom the Canadian station entrusts this mission is a Scot by the name of Jack Lamont.

Lamont is a Corporal in the Royal North-West Mounted Police and is a military attaché of the Canadian Embassy.

He goes to Baltimore for his Embassy's liquor and returns it to Washington with the same calmness and dispatch for which organization is noted.

Hijackers know and fear this grim and stout Scot.

A Failure at Thirty-five; Successful at Fifty

Late in Life, Phospho-Cod gives strength and pep to do things in a successful way

Hundreds of men are proving every day that it's never too late to "come back," and come back strong. You can do it too! How would you like to surprise all who consider you "just about through," dazzle them with flashing burst of speed and energy, and capture the success which so far has eluded you?

It's all a matter of winning back your full share of pep and vigor—the energy to do things in a big way—and a health of body that makes for ambition and mental alertness.

There is an amazingly quick, safe and enjoyable way of doing this. Phospho-Cod, a fine old prescription, is guaranteed to double your pep in twelve days. So many hundreds of happy men and women have already profited by the wonderful rejuvenating powers of this fine old tonic that Walgreen Drug Stores feel perfectly safe in making you this offer. If, after twelve days, Phospho-Cod hasn't made you a healthier, happier person, they'll refund what you pay for it.

You'll enjoy taking Phospho-Cod, for it has a flavor like rare old wine. From its peptones of cod livers you'll get new pep and energy, and its purifying extracts and hypophosphites will help throw off the poisons which weaken the system. Phospho-Cod is priced well within the means of everybody, and can be had at all Walgreen Drug Stores.

INSTEAD of exercise...

DO IT TONIGHT! Join the ranks of the millions who know the secret of the exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime!

CASCARETS give your bowels as much exercise as you get from an hour in the water. Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives don't act like Cascarets. These things only produce mechanical or chemical action which really weakens your bowels.

EACH TIME you use Cascarets your bowels become stronger! They are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and exercises the bowel muscles. Nothing else does this. That's why Cascarets are selling at the rate of 20 million boxes a year, and people everywhere depend on them for lasting relief from headaches, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc.

Do beautiful movie stars have colds?

Movie directors know their psychology. They realize that practically nothing can so quickly shatter the beautiful background of romance as the ordinary symptoms attending a cold.

That is why you have never seen a movie in which the heroine was shown with a cold? Or one in which the leading man sneezed constantly and coughed.

In real life, however, the stars catch cold as millions do. But unlike many people in other professions and businesses, they take care of themselves at once.

They must. Their box-office value depends on their health.

That is why it is so significant that in Hollywood, GROVE'S BROMO QUININE is the outstanding, out-selling cold remedy.

Its quick results have been proved for nearly 40 years. Pleasantly laxative, it clears the digestive tract of the poisons that encourage colds. Then it tones the system and breaks up the chills. Aches vanish. Headache goes. And your cold is over, quicker than you thought possible. . . . To be sure of getting the prescription which leads in world sales as it does in Hollywood, emphasize GROVE'S, in asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

LAWYER SAID TO HAVE BOASTED OF HIS 'PULL'

Three Witnesses Say New Yorker Told of Intimacy With Federal Jurist.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 11.—Marcus Helfand, bankruptcy lawyer accused of soliciting business on the basis of a boasted intimacy with Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow, appeared before Federal Judge John Knox today to show cause why his name should not be removed from the roll of lawyers authorized to practice in the Federal courts here.

Numerous witnesses testified that Helfand had told them he had influence with Judge Winslow which made it possible for him to get any results he wished in bankruptcy cases.

Charles Pearl, an attorney, told of going to Helfand about a motion for a client of his. He said Helfand promised to have the motion denied for $1000, exhibiting photographs of Judge Winslow inscribed to him in friendly phrases. Pearl said he considered the fee exorbitant and declined to have further dealings with Helfand.

Harry J. Halperin, also a lawyer, told of negotiations with Helfand concerning Meyer Kaplan, who in 1926 was accused of using the mails to defraud. He said that to demonstrate that he was in a position to help Kaplan, Helfand had Kaplan and Halperin stand in the sidewalk where they could see Judge Winslow and the bankruptcy lawyer go to dinner and later to a theater together.

Halperin, who was mentioned by Congressman F. H. La Guardia in the House of Representatives as a witness to payment of $5000 by Kaplan to Helfand, denied on the stand that he knew of any such payment.

WOMAN QUOTED AS SAYING SHE SAW MIAMI KILLING Night Club Hostess Asserts Gambler Associate Shot Walsh After Sudden Quarrel, Paper Reports.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The Daily News says a reporter has located and questioned a woman here who witnessed the killing of Thomas Walsh in Miami, Fla.

Demaria Dore, night club hostess and friend of Walsh, is quoted by the News as saying the slaying of Walsh, a former bodyguard of the late Arnold Rothstein, was the result of a sudden quarrel between Walsh and one of his gambler associates in the Miami-Biltmore Hotel.

She refused to name the killer, but said she was close to the group at the time of the shooting that she nearly was hit by one of the bullets. After the shooting, she said, she was told to leave town and was taken to Palm Beach where she boarded a train for New York.

The statement attributed to the woman was at variance with one police theory that Walsh was killed to keep him from disclosing the whereabouts of Hymie Miller, wanted in connection with the killing of Rothstein.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The District of Columbia Court of Appeals refused today to reconsider its recent decision permitting station WGY, operated by the General Electric Co. to operate full time on 730 kilocycles. It also refused to stay its mandate to permit the U. S. Supreme Court to pass on the question.

Unless the Supreme Court should take action on an application by the commission before next Saturday, the mandate will be sent to the Radio Commission on that day, directing it to set aside its order limiting WGY's time. The commission had sought to have WGY close at sunset on the Pacific coast, so as not to conflict with programs of KGO at Oakland, Calif., which is also owned by General Electric.

otherwise it would not be worth while returning. And exactly because the undertaking is dangerous we are about to do it. If it were not so, others would have already preceded us."

Defamation No Surprise.
And even then I foresaw the greatest danger, the Italian business with which some would attack us in case of non-success.

If one of the adverse possibilities should happen and our enterprise should be wrecked or a total catastrophe should overtake us—such as is possible, even having done everything to prevent its occurrence—the facile critics will come forth and tell us: "We told you so!"

It could not have been otherwise."

The possibility of a disaster and the defamation that would, with malicious pleasure, be thrown over our enterprise both were foreseen by me, and therefore did not surprise me.

So I assisted calmly without my heart trembling at the shipwreck of the airship. I accepted with serenity the torturing vicissitudes on the pack. My heart was not broken when human cruelty assailed me unarmed returning from the pack.

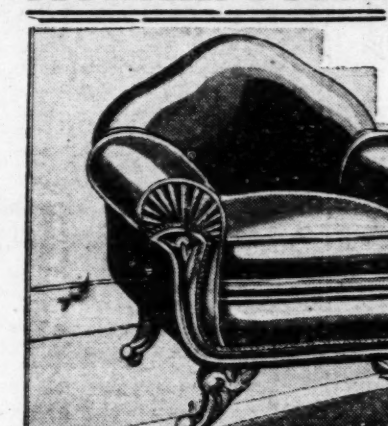

And for this I am ready to begin again.

How To Get HEALTH and How To Keep It

If the reading of this article teaches you only this one lesson about your own body it may be worth more than millions of dollars to you; for of what use is money without health, or after you are dead?

The lesson is this—"Keep your system pure and you will have health and strength to gain and enjoy happiness, success and length of years."

But you may ask—

How Can I Keep My System Pure?

That is not a hard question to answer, for physiology plainly teaches you that your liver, which is larger than any of your other vital organs, has the special work of purifying your blood and thereby your entire system and of keeping it pure and healthy.

How Does the Liver Purify?

Physicians tell us that the liver has several functions, one of which is to manufacture a greenish-yellow, bitter fluid called the bile, which, between meals, is stored up in the gall-bladder, but after each meal is poured out into the intestines. The bile is purgative and antiseptic or prophylactic. In health, it is your bile that makes your bowels act regularly and freely every day—it is Nature's only purgative. It is your bile that keeps your bowels pure, sweet, clean and free from fermentation (gas) putrefaction and decay. Remember that germs do not thrive where there is fresh bile and there can therefore be no fermentation to cause gas, nor putrefaction or decay to produce poisons or toxins. Also, as bile is Nature's purgative, there can be no constipation if a bile is flowing naturally and freely from the gall-bladder into the bowels after each meal.

But when the bile becomes stagnant and stops flowing freely, your bowels stop acting regularly and the contents become a foul, stagnant breeding bed for the germs of fermentation (gas) decay and disease. These poisons, (called toxins) are gradually absorbed into your blood and circulate all over your body, poisoning, irritating or inflaming your brain and nerves, your muscles and joints, your heart, lungs, skin, kidneys, bladder, spleen and every vital organ of your body, including your liver, stomach and bowels. Your doctor calls this "intestinal toxemia."

Functions of Gall-Bladder

In 24 hours your liver secretes about 25 to 30 ounces (5 to 6 teacupful) of bile, which flows through millions of minute canals, or ducts, uniting to make a large tube which empties into the gall-bladder, as creeks and rivulets unite to form a river that flows into a lake. Your gall-bladder is a hollow muscle that serves the double purpose of a reservoir and a pump. Its functions are similar to those of the urinary bladder. About two hours after eating, when the food is passing from the stomach into the intestine, your gall-bladder should begin its peristaltic contractions, thus pumping the bile into the small intestine where it is mixed with your food. Bile is also a very important digestive fluid, aiding in the digestion and absorption of fats and oils. But that is too long a story to relate here.

Nature's Danger Signals

When your car gets out of fix you can tell it. It is the same way with your bile. Nature gives you warning—not by words, but by signals or symptoms. Your doctor recognizes these danger signals and you also should know them and instantly heed them. It may save you much pain, serious illness and perhaps, big repair bills.

When the bile becomes stagnant in your gall-bladder and is dammed back into your liver instead of flowing freely into your bowels you, sooner or later, begin to feel some of the following symptoms:—Your breath may become heavy or foul, your tongue coated, a bad taste in your mouth, your food (and tobacco) lose their natural flavor, your food does not agree with you; you may have heartburn, gas, or fluttering around the heart, dizziness or blind spells; you may be troubled with belching or frequent passages of gas from the bowels; the gas "balloons" your bowels and presses so hard on the kidneys that it gives you pain, soreness, stiffness in the small of your back over your kidneys, making you think you have kidney trouble; at night the gas in your bowels presses upon your bladder making you get up frequently, thus breaking into your sleep. In the morning you are tired instead of refreshed. Gradually your health is injured. Your complexion becomes sallow, muddy or yellow—your skin may be disfigured with liver spots or pimples; dark rings may appear under your eyes, you may become sleepless, restless and irritable or blue and melancholic. You may have frequent colds or dull headache; your bowels stop their free, full and natural action; you have constipation, fermentation, gas, putrefaction and self-poisoning or "intestinal toxemia," as the doctors call it. High blood pressure, with headache and swooning spells, may result from continued neglect.

How to Make the Bile Flow

But when the bile stops flowing freely, how can we start it up again? The answer is: Take Calotabs at bedtime and drink water freely the next day. This formula represents the best thought and experience of the best physicians in every civilized country in the world. No other purgative will do. If you take oils, salts, cascara, or the many other simple-laxative syrups, powders and candy laxatives, you are merely wasting valuable time. They only make you feel better for a day or two. They do not remove the cause, for they do not promote the flow of the bile which is Nature's only purgative and intestinal antiseptic. When you take Calotabs you know that you have taken a real, doctor's medicine. It cleans you out thoroughly. Every inch of your twenty-five foot canal, including your stomach, small intestines and large intestines, is thoroughly cleared and washed clean and pure and your bile is flowing freely. Next morning your system feels purified and refreshed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please and go about your work—there is no danger, for Calotabs are perfectly safe and create no habit except the habit of healthy bowel actions.

What are Calotabs—How do They Act?

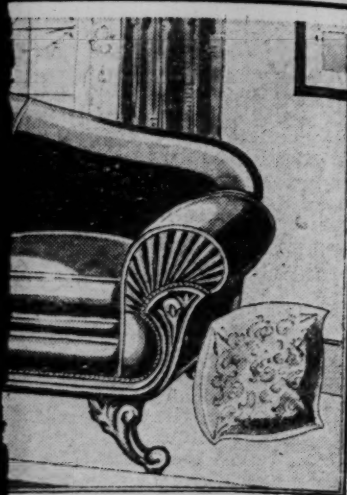

Calotabs are composed of a thoroughly purified and refined calomel combined with assistants and correctives. The calomel increases the flow of the bile from the gall-bladder into the intestines, and also serves as an intestinal antiseptic. Every physician knows that no other medicine can take its place; there is no such thing as a substitute for calomel. The assistants act like salts, washing the calomel out of the system and preventing its accumulation and any possibility of danger. The correctives settle the stomach and bowels, preventing nausea, sickening and griping effects. Calotabs, (and water) therefore, give you the combined effects of calomel and salts without the nauseating, sickening, griping and dangerous effects of either.

The medicine chest of every home should be supplied with Calotabs, one of the most important of all family medicines, for it is needed in many cases of sickness, and, if used promptly, may prevent many cases of serious illness.

Avoid disappointment by refusing imitations and substitutes. Your druggist can supply you with genuine Calotabs if you insist. For your protection, Calotabs are marketed in original packages only, having the copyrighted trademark shown above. Family package, containing full directions, only 35 cents.

Reaching Desirable Customers

—Eliminating Unprofitable Areas

Greater St. Louis—The Billionarea—with more than 305,000 homes represents a consuming population large enough and rich enough to attract the undivided attention of any retail store in St. Louis.

The incomes of the homes in The Billionarea represent a steadily revolving purchasing power exceeding a Billion Dollars a year.

An Authentic Comparison

Within the Billionarea

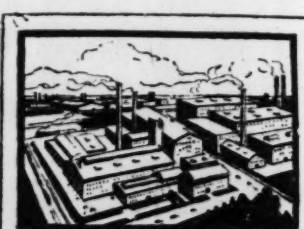

Outside the Billionarea

Population is concentrated—6500 persons or 1650 families per square mile.

Population is scattered—45 persons or 10 families per square mile.

Wealth production, on which purchasing power is based, averages $8,000,000 per square mile.

Wealth production, on which purchasing power is based, averages $16,000 per square mile.

Retail stores average 105 to the square mile. They are feet and minutes apart.

Retail stores average one store to every two square miles. They are hours and miles apart.

IT IS a purchasing power not affected by adverse weather, poor crops or bad luck with pigs or poultry.

More dollars are earned and spent regularly in Greater St. Louis than in hundreds of small towns and villages or on thousands of farms out in the sparsely settled rural communities of low purchasing power.

A metropolitan merchant locates in a metropolis to sell merchandise to city earners and spenders. Small town and R. F. D. dwellers spend their money with small town merchants and cross-road stores.

Metropolitan St. Louis is so thoroughly covered by one newspaper that advertisers can, at one low cost and without duplication, conduct powerful selling campaigns that will move any desired volume of merchandise within reason.

A more extensive effort to develop the close-in-trade can be made economically and profitably by the concentration of advertising in the Post-Dispatch

KONJOLA ENDED THREE AILMENTS AFTER 9 MONTHS

Stomach, Liver and Kidney Trouble Had Defied Everything Until Konjola Was Tried.

What remarkable experiences, what wonderful recoveries are described in the stream of testimonials and endorsements that pour in, telling of the amazing achievements of Konjola, the new medicine, which is now within reach of all in St. Louis and vicinity.

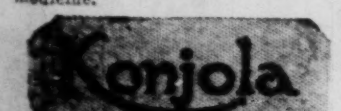

MR. HENRY OCHS.

Photo by V. Jensen, 750 Olive St. This modern medicine of 22 ingredients is being explained and its astonishing triumphs pointed out by the Konjola Man, who is at the Walgreen Drug Store, 515 Olive street, St. Louis. There those who suffer, those who may have given up in despair, are invited to hear—not promises and claims—but the good news of Konjola's success in even the stubborn cases that have defied and baffled all efforts to find relief. Konjola strives for just one thing—results. Konjola is not designed to give mere temporary relief; Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-dulling drugs, no harsh, depressing chemicals. It is a medicine that Nature herself might have compounded, for it contains the juices from 22 roots and herbs of medicinal value. Wherever Konjola has been introduced it continues to win friends and fame. There must be a reason for this astonishing success. This is—Konjola makes good. What hope and encouragement for all who suffer is to be found in the experience of Mr. Henry Ochs, 3632 Arkansas street, St. Louis. Picture, if you can, the happiness of this man as he said to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"No words of mine can begin to tell the story of my gratitude for Konjola, nor of my amazement to find such quick and complete relief from suffering that made life miserable for me. For the past nine months I suffered from stomach, liver and kidney trouble. Soon after each meal I bloated with gas that caused intense distress. Shortness of breath and a sour taste resulted. Little sleep was I able to get at night, because my arms, shoulders and back were a solid mass of aches and pains. Each day I had to force myself to work, and at night I was dead tired. This continued for months in spite of treatments and medicine. I lost all energy and vitality; my job was at stake, and I knew that something had to be done. "The many sincere endorsements of Konjola from local people led me to give it a trial. With renewed faith I started on this surprising medicine. I call it a surprising medicine because it certainly amazed me. From the very first I began to improve. I couldn't imagine what was happening—it seemed as if all my ailments were being driven from my body—and that is exactly what happened. Soon all the stomach woes had vanished; I found that three hearty meals a day caused no distress; that I was gaining strength and energy. My liver and kidneys were invigorated and strengthened. Sound sleep and greater energy are mine; my work is no longer drudgery and I don't return home all tired out. Every bit of my new and glorious health I owe to Konjola."

Thus Konjola works, surely and quickly. Amazing results come because the 22 ingredients of Konjola go to work without delay, cleansing and invigorating the system, and paving the way for the return of health so long sought in vain. The Konjola Man is at the Walgreen Drug Store, 515 Olive street, St. Louis, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

JOHNSTON SAYS HE OPPOSED FAVORS TO ROAD CONTRACTORS

Suspended Governor Testifies He Warned Against Buying From Mrs. Hammond's Brother.

By the Associated Press. OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., March 11.—Taking the witness stand for the fourth day, Gov. Henry S. Johnston, on trial before the Senate Court of Impeachment, today defended the record of the Oklahoma Highway Department.

Activities of Reed Scott, road machinery salesman and a brother of Mrs. O. O. Hammond, who was the Governor's confidential secretary, entered into the testimony. Johnston said he learned on one occasion of the changing of a requisition to provide for the purchase of Scott's graders.

"I immediately went to the Highway Commission," the Governor testified, "and told members that any special favor to Mrs. Hammond's brother would not be tolerated. I insisted that the graders which were best and cheapest should be purchased."

The Governor, suspended from office pending the outcome of his trial, testified that while he tried to "keep track" of the operations of the five-man Highway Commission which followed him into office he did not seek to dominate the commission's actions.

Johnston said he had made no efforts to influence the Highway Commission to let contracts to any particular contractor. He explained, however, that on one occasion he did interfere in an attempt to prevent a letting to a contractor he believed to be "an habitual drinker."

JACK MCGURN, HELD IN CHICAGO IDENTIFIED IN NEW YORK KILLING

Officers Assert He Was One of Four Men Who Assassinated Frank Yale.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, March 11.—Another notorious gang murder—that of Frank Yale in New York last year—has been added to the seven murders for which Jack McGurn already is held here.

Announcement that McGurn had been identified by photographs as one of the Yale killers was made today. The development followed closely the visit of New York officers who conferred with Chicago officials about the Valentine's day murders on North Clark street.

The Herald-Examiner said the identification of McGurn, Jack Perry, Louis (Little New York) Campagna and Mike Barnes, as men involved in the Yale assassination had convinced investigators that the New York and Chicago murders were done by the same men.

Police said that three telephone calls to Chicago from the neighborhood of Yale's home in New York the day before the Yale killing had been traced, and that they apparently had been made to members of the Al Capone gang here. McGurn and Perry both are known to officers as Capone men. One of the phone calls was made from the home of Campagna's mother, Mrs. Yale and Capone formerly were allies, but their relations were broken in 1927.

IMPORTANT WITNESS MISSING, MURDER CHARGE DISMISSED

A first degree murder charge against Lawrence Schmelling, 22 years old, 5115 West Poepping street, was dismissed by Circuit Judge Mulloy at Clayton today, because the State's star witness, Oliver O'Toole, was said to be out of the Court's jurisdiction.

Schmelling was charged with killing Central Tappeneier, a carpenter, of Grand and Rock Hill roads, St. Louis County, April 16 last. Tappeneier, who was at the home of a neighbor, refused admittance to a group of men and women who drove up. An hour later they returned and one of the men fired upon Tappeneier with a shotgun.

Run From Chicago to Pacific Coast in 63 Hours Proposed.

By the Associated Press. ST. PAUL, Minn., March 11.—Reduction in passenger train running time to the Pacific Northwest to meet a contemplated cut of five hours by the Great Northern, was announced today by Charles M. Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific.

The proposed new schedules call for a run of approximately 62 hours between Chicago and the Pacific Coast, against the present time of about 68 hours. The date on which they will go into effect has not been announced.

In the real estate section of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, through a typographical error, it was erroneously stated that the Koplar Construction Co. has the construction contract for the De Soto Hotel at Eighth and Market street, work on which was stopped several months ago pending new financial arrangements.

The work is being done by the Kopman Construction Co., of which Joseph Kopman is president. This company has no connection with the Koplar company, which owns and operates the Congress Hotel, the Senate and Embassy apartments, and is building the 23-story Park Plaza apartment hotel at Kingshighway and Maryland.

CHICAGO PLANS 66 AIRPORTS

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, March 11.—Preparing for the possibility that, five years hence, 1500 planes will land and 60,000,000 pieces of mail will be handled in the Chicago area, the Chicago Regional Planning Commission announced yesterday that it had selected sites for 66 new airports. There now are 21 landing fields in actual use in the regional area, which includes 15 counties surrounding Chicago.

Thirty-six of the proposed sites are in Cook County and three are within 10 miles of Chicago's loop district. Each airport would cost about $1,250,000, including the land.

Famous Cough Prescription

Contains No Chloroform or Other Harmful Drugs

The use of medicines containing chloroform or dope to relieve coughing is dangerous and unnecessary. Now anyone can get quick relief with a famous prescription called Thoxine, which contains no chloroform or other harmful drugs and is safe and pleasant to take.

Thoxine is thoroughly efficient because it has a double action—soothes the irritation—goes direct to the internal cause, and stops the cough almost instantly. Far superior to cough syrups and patent medicines. Also excellent for sore throat. Quick relief guaranteed or your money back. 35c, 60c and $1.00. All druggists.

More Attractive After She Gained Needed Weight

Is your face drawn and pinched? Your skin flabby? Are your cheeks sunken with great hollows under the eyes? Does your figure show unbecoming angles instead of the softly rounded slimness of youth?

All these conditions rob you of attractiveness and make you look old. But worst of all, these may actually be the symptoms of simple anemia—that dread ailment so often suffered by women.

There's nothing so good as McCoy's Tablets to put on firm flesh, round out face and figure and help build rich, red blood.

So if you need a few pounds of flesh to round out the hollows, if you want to get back old-time energy and health, get a box of McCoy's Tablets today. Just a short treatment will make you look and feel like a new person.

McCoy takes all the risk. Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty-cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One-Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your money will be returned.

Just ask for McCoy's Tablets at Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores or any drug store in America.

WINK JOKER PLACED BOMB

Police Not Aroused Over Discovery Near Royal Residence.

OSLO, Norway, March 10.—The police admitted today they were not much aroused over the finding yesterday of an infernal machine near Oscars Hall, prospective residence of Prince Olaf when he marries Princess Martha of Sweden late this month.

As the bomb was arranged with a candle fuse exposed to the wind and unlighted when found, they are inclined to believe it was the work of a joker or one way of expressing someone's dislike of the idea of using Oscars Hall for a royal residence.

TROTZKY IS TRANSFERRED FROM CONSULATE TO HOTEL

Partial Lifting of Restrictions Indicate Early Departure From Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 11.—Leon Trotzky and his wife and son have left the soviet Consulate where they have been confined since their arrival from Russia and now are living in a hotel in Pera. No reason has been made public for lifting the restrictions which had hitherto been opposed by soviet authorities.

While he now enjoys most of the privileges accorded any foreigners residing in Turkey, it appears that Trotzky has pledged himself not to organize any demonstration. The same guards attend him and the difficulty of keeping him isolated in the crowded hotel would seem to point to imminent departure from Turkey.

The transfer from the Consulate to the hotel was attended by the same secrecy that marked his arrival in Turkey.

EXPERTS TAKE UP REPARATION BANK AS AID TO TRADE

Relations of Proposed Agency With Other State Depositories Discussed at Plenary Session.

NO DECISION AS YET ON ANNUITIES TOTAL

Long Negotiations Expected Before Allies and Germany Can Arrive at Compromise.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 11.—Experts at today's plenary session of the International Committee on Reparations began discussion of one of the most delicate features of the proposed giant international bank to handle reparations payments. They discussed the relation of the international bank with other state banks as well as the questions of capitalization and possible use of the bank for extending credit to world trade.

Lord Revelstoke of the British delegation was asked to make a further study of the capitalization question, while a special drafting committee headed by Sir Josiah Stamp was appointed to embody in the banking scheme points previously reported upon.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht of the Reichsbank returned to Berlin this afternoon, but will be back for the next plenary session Wednesday.

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT, Paris Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (the New York World and Post-Dispatch).

PARIS, March 11.—No agreement on the size of the reparation annuities Germany must pay is in sight.

The experts make no secret of the fact that they anticipate a wearisome period of negotiations before Germany and her creditors can be brought to a compromise on the extent of its total indebtedness.

The correspondent has authority for saying that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German delegation, never has intimated that Germany could pay more than $23,000,000 a year.

A German expresses with equal assurance the opinion that Germany's creditors have not reduced their demands below the present schedule under the Dawes plan calling for the payment by Germany of $600,000,000.

The difference between the German and Allied viewpoints as to Germany's capacity to pay would appear to be even wider than was anticipated earlier if the Germans are offering only a little more than $600,000,000 and her creditors are asking annual payments of $600,000,000.

Germany Threaten to Withdraw.

Meanwhile a campaign has started in Germany, operating directly upon the experts to make it appear that Germany will not consent to figure as high as $300,000,000 annually, and that if the experts are unwilling to agree, Germany will withdraw its delegation. This, however, is making little impression in Paris, particularly upon the American delegates because it was an anticipated move.

Another suggestion from Germany is the proposal made by Vossische Zeitung for another temporary solution of the reparations problem. This, it is understood, was turned down by the principal experts, who announced they were either going to dispose of reparations problems once for all or abandon the attempt to do so and leave the Dawes plan in operation.

These currents of opinion, however, are only incidental to the immediate task of the experts which is to concentrate on the establishment of an international bank to handle all reparations matters, making it elastic enough for Germany to pay anyway she wants.

At today's plenary session it is anticipated Germany will be given a wide range of choice in regard to its annuities. In the matter of fixed unconditional payments, Germany will be offered the choice of beginning with low payments and working up gradually to higher ones, or of concentrating its larger payments in the first 20 years and making the terminal payments lighter.

Payments which would gradually increase by steps like the war debt payments is the solution most favored for the reason that it would fit in with the obligations of the Allies to pay their war debts to America.

Germany Against Bank.

The proposed international bank plan is reported to have the support of the British, American and French Governments. Dr. Schacht, although one of the authors of the plan, has not yet succeeded in convincing Berlin of its desirability, it is understood.

some country? Only a simpleton could think that it would not. For the present we only remark: 'Are we in the presence of an ambitious enterprise of American men of affairs who wish to impose their hegemony?' That the plan is too big and is an exhibit of megalomania is the expressed opinion of this Nationalist organ.

Excelsior further expresses French hesitation about accepting the international bank. 'The plan,' this newspaper says, 'will be criticized, perhaps opposed. Public opinion, especially in France, initiated in international credit operations and some particular interests will consider themselves hampered.'

Excelsior credits the plan of the American delegates, commenting: 'It must have received at least Hoover's tact support. But if France wants to go on collecting reparations, it must adapt itself to the necessary means.'

"Daddy, help me build a bridge"
Daddy? ? ? Daddy, why? ? ? Daddy look!

"Daddy, help me build a life"... that's the unspoken plea, and as you heed the little petitions, so must you answer that big demand: "Daddy, help me."

Fathers are using "Mercantile Service"

~ One opened a savings account when his son was born. In it he deposits one dollar a week and a dollar for every year of the boy's age, every birthday. Some day that money will help build a most necessary bridge.... Education.

~ Another maintains a savings account as trustee for his son, and when it reaches a certain amount he buys a bond. The bonds are planned to mature at times in the boy's life when money will be needed most.... every bond a bridge.

~ Still another gives his son a $500 First Mortgage Note each year at Christmas time, with the understanding that principal and interest shall remain untouched until the son's twenty-first birthday. This boy will not have to start from scratch in the business world, for the early difficulties are being bridged.

~ And another has created a life insurance trust for his son's benefit, and now he knows the boy will have money to carry him through to the time when money will not be needed from a father, who knows this bridge will hold.... through everything.

So, help him build his bridges—help him build his life—help him with "Mercantile Service," which will be a bridge to his independence—and happiness, because....

WISCONSIN WON BIG TEN TITLE UNDER DICKINSON SCORING SYSTEM

FINAL STANDINGS

Team	W.	L.	Pts.
Wisconsin	10	2	342
Michigan	10	2	341
Purdue	9	3	441
Northwestern	7	5	336
Ohio State	6	6	364
Illinois	5	7	331
Iowa	4	8	328
Indiana	4	8	328
Chicago	2	10	288
Minnesota	1	11	300

Special to the Post-Dispatch, March 11.—CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 11.—Wisconsin and Michigan tied for the Big Ten conference basketball championship, when the Badgers defeated Chicago in the final game of the season Saturday. Each quintet went through the season with 10 victories against two defeats.

However, based on the Dickinson system of scoring, intended only for football, the Wisconsin victory over the Maroons gave the team clear claim to the title. Under the Dickinson system, the Badgers finished with a percentage of 22.50, whereas Michigan's mark was 21.50.

Under this system, the other teams stood as follows: Purdue 19.62, Northwestern 19.17, Ohio State 16.56, Illinois 15.53, Iowa 14.17, Indiana 14, Chicago 11.87 and Minnesota 10.87. Under this system Ohio State gets fifth, whereas in games won and lost the quintet tied with Illinois for the position.

Illinois Stopped Murphy.—"Stretch" Murphy led in individual scoring with a total of 143 points as a result of 49 field goals and 45 free throws. Johnny How of Illinois finished second with 101 points, followed by McCracken of Indiana with 100 points; Van Heyde, Ohio State, with 99, and Foster of Wisconsin with 95. Murphy came within a single point of having an average of 12 points a game. In one game, that with Illinois, early in the season, the Purdue Flash was held scoreless.

During the season Wisconsin dropped two games to Michigan, the first by a 21 to 23 count and the second by a 37 to 22 score. Michigan's two defeats were received from Northwestern by a 24 to 23 count and from Illinois by a 27 to 24 score in an overtime game. Last season Wisconsin tied for third place with Northwestern in the final rating, having won nine games and lost three, while Michigan finished in fifth place with seven games won and five lost.

By winning nine games and dropping three, Purdue finished in third place this season, whereas last year they tied for first place honors with Indiana. Indiana had a poor season, winning but four out of 12 games played. The championship last year was decided in the same manner as this year, Purdue and Indiana each winning 10 games and losing two.

Teams Weaker on Offense.—Greater offensive power was shown by the winning teams last year than was developed by the winners this year. Last year Purdue scored 445 points against 214 by opponents, while Indiana averaged 474 points against 332 by opposing teams. This season Michigan scored 344 points against 265 by opposing teams, while Wisconsin made 342 points against 285 by opponents. In other words, the two teams tied for first place last year, scored 233 points more than the co-champions this year, although this season's winners held opposing teams to 96 fewer points.

Three overtime games were played during the past season, with Indiana figuring in two of them. Iowa won over Indiana, 29 to 27, in an overtime game, while Northwestern defeated the Hoosiers, 28 to 26, in a similar contest, while Illinois won over Michigan, 27 to 24, in an extra period game.

Purdue holds the record of having scored the largest number of points in a single game, winning over Chicago, 64 to 16. Illinois and Indiana figured in the lowest score game, Illinois defeating Indiana by a 29 to 16 tally.

European Champion Wins.—MILAN, March 11.—Domenico Bernasconi of Milan, featherweight champion of Europe, defeated Petit Bisquet of Liege, the Belgian title holder, on points in a 15-round match here yesterday.

Leo Dickerman, one time member of the Cardinals' pitching staff, and who last season drifted from the Pacific Coast League to Shreveport and Beaumont of the Texas League, and finally to Lynn of the Eastern League, is now the property of Minneapolis of the American Association.

Otis Miller, Belleville boy, who had a trial with the Browns, and later went to Milwaukee of the American Association as an infielder, will be utility outfielder for the Brewers this season.

Eddie Mulligan, third sacker, last season with the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be at the center for San Francisco in the Pacific Coast League. He writes that "It won't be long now." The Pacific Coast League season opens the latter part of this month.

George Brachio, second sacker, who was with Leo Fohl's Des Moines club in the Western League, will play second base for Wichita of the same circuit this season.

Johnny Brock, veteran Southern League catcher, with Atlanta last season, will be with Nashville this season, and "Lefty" Fuhr, who pitched for Nashville during the 1928 campaign, will wear the uniform of the New Orleans team.

Gus "Lefty" Johns, who pitched for Fort Worth in the Texas League for several seasons, will try his luck with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League.

George "Tat" Wuestling, the Butcher Town boy, who made a favorable impression with the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League last season, playing shortstop, will be back with the Beavers.

Joe Schultz, manager of Danville in the Three-I League, who underwent an operation for appendicitis a few weeks ago, has fully recovered, and in the absence of the Cardinals' officials, who are at Avon Park, Fla., with the Red Birds, Schultz is helping to hold down the office of Sportsman's Park, until time for the opening of the Red Birds' baseball school in Danville in April. He will be joined by Scouts Charley Barrett, Joe Sugden and Jack Ryan, who will help classify the big army of recruits.

Four Girls in Race for High Scoring Honor

Four girls, each on a different team, will take the floor at the Armory Wednesday night, very much in the battle for the individual scoring honors in the Greater St. Louis Girls' Basketball League. Only three points separate the four.

They are Ruth Burkhardt of the Peets, the leader, with 21 points; Dot Brown, Headlights, 20 points; Winifred Kendrick, Schenbergs, and Marie Madison, Crystal City, 13 points each. Glaser of the Bachelors, who will be idle, is in fifth place, with 17 points. A feature of the battle for scoring honors is that Miss Brown's total is made up of 12 free throws. She has scored twice as many free throws as any other player. Miss Burkhardt was the leading scorer in the first half of the league season. She is also leading in field goals, with nine, two more than Miss Kendrick and Miss Madison.

Miss Glaser and her teammate, Theresa Mullen, have committed the most fouls, 11.

Armory Boxing Card Completed

The complete program for the Walter J. Hatzfeld Legion Post professional boxing show Friday night at the Armory was announced today by Matchmaker J. J. "Darryl" Kelly.

The sixth and final match added to the card will bring Frankie Star of Flat River, Mo., against Arrell Hoffman of Belleville, Ill. They will fight for four rounds at 135 pounds.

Jack McAuliffe, Detroit heavyweight, who will trade blows with Dave Knost, former national amateur heavyweight titleholder, in the feature match of the card, is due to arrive tomorrow. He will train daily at the National Gymnasium, while Knost is holding daily sessions at the Motorbus Gymnasium. Denver Kid of Kansas City will report Wednesday night for his match with Joe Ghnoully, St. Louis bantam. The only match that Ghnoully lost since he invaded the professional ranks was at the hands of Denver Kid. The local youth feels confident that he will reverse the verdict.

ST. LOUIS "PRO" CAGE TEAM WON 36 OF 42 GAMES

PASSAIC, N. J., March 11.—When the St. Louis American basketball team closed its season against the Warren Independents of Warren, Pa., the five owned one of the most remarkable records ever established by a basketball team in the United States.

Leaving St. Louis on Dec. 24, the team started a road trip which carried the players through 17 states and the District of Columbia. Covering the entire route by motor car, the team traveled exactly 11,350 miles.

The team played a total of 42 games on the road, and 25 were chalked up in the victory column. When it is considered that all these contests were played on foreign courts, the record is still more remarkable. Sports writers throughout the country tacked various monikers on the players, and as a result they were called the "Lindberghs," the "Spirit of St. Louis," the "Mound Cityans" and others.

Starting from St. Louis, the team went to Illinois and won three games. In Indiana three of four contests were won.

They then went to Michigan, defeating four of the five teams played, dropping back to the South for an extended tour. They swept everything before them south of the Mason-Dixon Line and ran up a winning streak of 14 consecutive victories before they were checked in a closely played affair. Georgia was the next stop, and after showing their wares in the Cracker State, they started a pilgrimage to the Atlantic Coast.

Illness Takes Three Stars.—Here sickness overtook the players, and Gockel, Ford and Mitchell were forced from the lineup. Gockel is a former St. Louis boy and was the nucleus around which the team was built. The coaching of Don White of Washington University, who piloted the team in its early games, proved invaluable.

Gockel and Ford were left behind on the last trip north, both taking up temporary residence in Chattanooga, Tenn. Hamas, who replaced Ford in the lineup, stepped into the shoes of one of America's greatest stars, but he filled the bill to perfection, as the team's record for the last three weeks will attest. In the closing part of the schedule the team won

Following is the record by states of the games won and lost by the St. Louis team:

SCHMELING AND PAULINO SLATED TO BOX JUNE 27

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 11.—If all goes well, the next big heavyweight battle will take place in the Yankee Stadium June 27 with Max Schmeling of Germany in one corner and Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish woodchopper, in the other.

Tom McArdle, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, announced tentative plans for the fight yesterday. No contracts have been signed nor has the Garden definitely committed itself to the bout. The directing heads of the corporation may attend to that at a meeting scheduled for tomorrow. There is a big question of whether Schmeling can clean himself of a plethora of managers in time to go through the match. Herr Max, whose stock took a remarkable jump when he stopped Johnny Blake, now is in Germany. He is convinced that he has too many managers for his own good and he plans to cut down the number in some way even if it means fistie idleness for a year or so.

However, if Schmeling signs there seems to be little doubt that the Garden will be able to make the match without difficulty.

Under present plans the winner would be sent against Jack Sharkey in a big outdoor match in September. McArdle, however, is not so sure about that angle. He is waiting to see whether Otto Von Porat, the heavy punching Norwegian, can decisively beat Tom Heeney at Chicago Tuesday night.

If Von Porat knocks out "Honest Tom" or beats him decisively he may get a match with the winner of the Schmeling-Paulino battle. The ultimate survivor then would meet Sharkey.

TOM HEENEY MEETS VON PORAT TOMORROW NIGHT IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 11.—The terminated to regain the position once held in the fistie sun, Tom Heeney, the "Big Rock" from New Zealand, clashes with Norwegian heavyweight champion, Otto von Porat, at the Coliseum tomorrow night.

The battle, billed to go 10 rounds to a decision, is the first made heavyweight card in Chicago since the Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey title clash in 1927.

Although he was decisively defeated by former Champion Tunney and Jim Maloney of Boston in his last two starts in America, Heeney was confident of stopping the hard socking Norwegian. He will outweigh von Porat by five or six pounds, but it is questionable whether he can hit harder or as hard as the angular Norwegian. Von Porat has won most of his American bouts via the knockout route.

TOM HEENEY MEETS VON PORAT TOMORROW NIGHT IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 11. — The battle, billed to go 10 rounds to a decision, is the first major heavyweight card in Chicago since the Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey title clash in 1927.

Although he was decisively defeated by former Champion Tunney and Jim Maloney of Boston in his last two starts in America, Heenev was confident of stopping the hard socking Norwegian. He will outweight von Porat by four or five pounds, but it is questionable whether he can hit harder or as hard as the angular Nordic. Von Porat has won most of his American bouts via the knockout route.

PIN THEIR FAITH TO LEMONS

Many Persons Going on a Sea Voyage Depend on Lemons.

Seasoned ocean travelers seldom embark without a supply of lemons. Their value in settling a "weak" stomach is quite as great on land as at sea. Distaste for food, lack of appetite, nausea, or dizziness after eating quite often are due to "acid-condition" which will yield to the alkaline action of lemons. This invigorating effect is equally welcome to the invalid and to the person in good health.

A Helpful Idea
A plain lemon jelly left from dessert may be cut up into cubes and mixed with fresh vegetables for a salad. To make a very economical lemon jelly and use less lemons: First wash lemons and squeeze out the juice. Place lemon skins in cold water and boil. Use this water instead of plain hot water when dissolving the gelatine which has been soaked in cold water. This gives jelly a much stronger lemon flavor.

THE MEATLESS DISH HAS ITS DEVOTEES

Although Custom Advocates Meat, Fish or Fowl for the Main Dish.

Many housekeepers delight in occasionally serving meatless main dishes. The following recipes for several dishes of this type will be found excellent:

Vegetable Chop Suey.
Take two large Spanish onions, sliced, two cups chopped celery, one cup water, four cups diced fresh tomatoes, one cup bean sprouts, one cup mushrooms, one tablespoon cornstarch, two tablespoons Sho-yu sauce, one teaspoon salt and four tablespoons butter.

Cook onions and celery in a cup water 10 minutes. Add tomatoes and cook five minutes longer. Add bean sprouts and mushrooms and cook another five minutes. Moisten cornstarch in Sho-yu sauce and stir into vegetables with salt and butter and cook five minutes. Serve with cooked brown rice.

Boiled brown rice is cooked as follows: Take one cup whole rice, one teaspoon salt and eight cups water.

Wash and drain rice; then drop a little at a time into rapidly boiling salted water. Cook uncovered 20 minutes. Drain quickly, rinse with boiling water and serve.

Vegetable Loaf.
A nice vegetable loaf is made of one cup cooked dried peas, one cup cooked carrots, two tablespoons parsley, one-half cup finely chopped green peppers, one-half cup finely chopped celery, three-fourths cup grated onion, one-fourth cup water, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one cup whole wheat bread crumbs, one-half cup milk, two eggs and one-third cup butter or bacon drippings.

Cook parsley, green pepper, celery and onion in one-fourth cup water for three minutes. Mash peas and carrots through colander; add salt and pepper and combine with cooked vegetables, butter and eggs. Stir thoroughly; then fold in bread crumbs and milk. Turn into loaf pan and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

Spinach loaf and lima bean loaf are two savory meatless main dishes.

To make lima bean loaf take two cups cooked lima beans, fresh or dried, one cup rice, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup chopped onion, one-half cup green peppers, one-half cup red peppers, one-fourth cup water, two eggs, one-half cup milk and one-third cup butter or bacon drippings.

Mash beans through colander; add rice, salt and pepper with onion and peppers, which have been cooked five minutes in one-fourth cup water. Drop in eggs and stir thoroughly; then add milk and melted butter. Turn into greased casserole and bake in a moderate oven for one hour.

Spinach loaf takes two cups milk, two eggs or four egg yolks, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and two cups chopped cooked spinach.

Mix eggs and milk; add salt and pepper and stir in chopped, cooked spinach. Turn into greased bread pans and bake in a moderate oven for one hour.

Spinach loaf and lima bean loaf should be served with a cheese sauce made of two tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, one and one-half cups milk, one-half cup grated cheese, one-half teaspoon salt and one-fourth teaspoon paprika.

Melt butter, add flour and blend thoroughly. Add milk gradually, and stir until thickened. Add cheese and seasonings, and cook five minutes longer.

VEGETABLE COOKERY LORE
These Rules Should Be Committed to Memory by Housewives.
Delicately-flavored vegetables should be steamed or cooked slowly in a small amount of boiling water until tender and the water boils away.

Strong-flavored vegetables may be cooked uncovered in a large amount of rapidly-boiling water, and the water changed several times during cooking.

Starchy vegetables should be put on to cook in sufficiently large amount of boiling water to cover them. Boil gently, and keep kettle covered.

Combination Salad.
Cover a salad plate with leaf lettuce. Make a square of banana slices, cutting banana in halves lengthwise and then in quarters.
Fill with grapefruit and orange slices and cubes of fresh or canned pineapple. Garnish with walnut and grapes. Serve with French fruit dressing or cream mayonnaise.

Steamed Onion Roll (English).
Make a light dough as for biscuit, roll to one-half inch thickness and spread thickly with sliced onions and some lean bacon or ham chopped fine, pepper and salt.
Roll and tie in a cloth, steam about two hours. Serve with white sauce flavored with two spoonfuls chopped parsley.

Broiled Oysters and Bacon.
Pick shewer through alternate pieces of bacon and oyster, having a piece of bacon at each end. Broil about one and one-half minutes.
Place on toast and season with salt and pepper.

TOOK CATHARTICS EVERY NIGHT

Eating ALL-BRAN Relieved Constipation

Everybody who is slave to cathartics and laxatives will be interested in this letter—

"I took cathartic pills every night and was unable to sleep. I was in a terrible state of mind. Two months ago I started eating a large bowl of your ALL-BRAN with cream for breakfast and today I am in fine condition, better than I have been in three years. My bowels are regular every day. I have not taken one cathartic pill in two months."

Mrs. A. J. O'Connell, 22 Phelps Ave., Rochester, N. Y.

Constipation gets in its deadly work when bulk is left out of the diet. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, however, will supply this bulk. It sweeps the intestine clean and stimulates normal action. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

Thousands have regained their old-time vigor and relieved constipation forever by eating ALL-BRAN. Doctors recommend it.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Delicious recipes for muffins, breads, etc., on the package. Grocers sell it. Restaurants, hotels, dining-cars serve it. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SOUFFLES DEPEND ON A NICE BASE SAUCE

This Type of Dish Is Enjoying an Extended Reign of Popularity.

This is the second article dealing with the making of sauces.

Last week I told you something of the types of sauces, how to mix a good white sauce, and some of the variations that were possible using it as a base. In that first article you may remember I told you that there were three kinds of white sauce, each thicker than the one before. The first type, which is quite thin, is that used in the making of cream soups; the second, which is of medium thickness, is the kind most in use, and is used in the making of almost all sauces for vegetables and fish; the third is very thick and is only used as a base for souffles, croquettes, and some escaloped dishes.

This week I am going to speak mostly of the last type—that used in the making of souffles and croquettes. These are not difficult dishes to make, providing the directions are carefully followed, and they make possible many good variations of every-day foods. Vegetable, meat, fish, or sweet souffles are all started in exactly the same way—using the same sauce as a base. This is made by melting three tablespoonfuls of butter and stirring in three to four tablespoonfuls of flour. When thoroughly blended, add one cup of milk and continue stirring over a slow fire until very thick, smooth and boiling. The difference given in the amount of flour used depends on whether the additional material used for flavoring is thick or thin. This thick sauce may be used as follows. All the extra materials should be added to the sauce while it is hot.

Croquettes—Two cups of chopped, cooked macaroni and one-half cup of grated cheese may be added to the sauce to make delicious macaroni croquettes. Season the mixture with salt and pepper and spread out to cool. When cold, shape into croquettes, roll in beaten egg and then in fine bread-crumbs and fry in deep, hot fat.

Fish croquettes: add one cup of cooked, flaked crabmeat, lobster, cod, salmon or any fish to the sauce. Stir in one beaten egg and season with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Then proceed the same as in macaroni croquettes. Meat croquettes: made in the same way as fish, adding one and one-half cups of finely chopped, cooked meat to the sauce. Season highly with salt, pepper, lemon juice, grated onion, etc., according to the meat used.

Souffles: Chocolate souffle makes a delicious dessert. Stir two squares of melted chocolate into the hot sauce, then beat in the yolks of three eggs, four tablespoonfuls of sugar and one teaspoon of vanilla. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs, pour into a well-buttered shallow dish and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven—375 degrees. Serve at once.

This is the only drawback in serving souffles, for if they stand after they are done they will collapse.

Apricot souffle: Rub canned or stewed dried apricots through a strainer and add one-half cup of the pulp to the sauce, with four tablespoonfuls of sugar and the yolks of three eggs. Reheat to the boiling point, remove at once from the fire and cool slightly. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and cook the same as chocolate souffle. Serve the apricot juice as a sauce.

THERE ARE MANY OTHER WAYS OF PREPARING POTATOES

From Time to Time New Recipes for Cooking This Vegetable Appear.

Housewives who exclaim over and over again "How I wish I could cook potatoes differently" need not despair. Here are several recipes for cooking potatoes that are new to me and to many other persons who try to keep up with the daily cookery developments.

Try cottage fried potatoes, for instance. Take one-half cup diced pork or one-third cup drippings or other fat, one tablespoon onion, six potatoes, one teaspoon salt and a few grains pepper.

Put pork in frying pan over a low flame and fry to golden color, without smoking; then remove meat from pan. Add grated or finely chopped onion with potatoes, which have been peeled and sliced very thin. Fry until tender, turning a number of times during the process. Add salt and pepper and serve hot.

Potatoes Mary.

Something new in the way of a potato dish (new at least in name) is Potatoes Mary. To prepare this delectable dish take six large or 12 small potatoes, two cups vegetable or meat stock, two tablespoonfuls butter, two tablespoonfuls flour, one-half teaspoon salt and one small bay leaf.

Cream butter and flour; add salt and boiling stock. Stir until thoroughly mixed. Boil one minute. Place pared potatoes and bay leaf in casserole. Pour over sauce, cover casserole and bake in a moderate oven for two hours.

When Making Gravy.

For steaks and roasts or any kind of meats, simply add mushrooms when you make the gravy.

A New Salad.

Pare and cut artichoke in thin slices and combine with cooked cauliflower and grated carrot. Add salt and pepper to suit taste. Arrange on lettuce leaves and pour over salad dressing.

One-Egg Cake.

Cream together one cup granulated sugar and one tablespoon butter. One egg beaten well in cup and then fill the cup with milk. Two cups of flour (sift first and then measure). Two teaspoonfuls baking powder. Flavoring.

Mealtime and bedtime—drink TODDY—hot! And tingle and glow from tongue to toe! All ready—2 teaspoons in a cup—add hot water—stir and drink. In cans at grocers.

DOZENS OF WAYS OF SERVING FISH FOR LENTEN MEALS

Ocean Fish With the Deep-Sea Flavor Obtainable at All Times.

Scalloped haddock with cheese is a tasty Lenten dish. To make it take two pounds haddock and cut it in thin slices about one-fourth inch thick and one inch square. Butter a shallow baking dish and put several tablespoons of cream sauce in bottom of dish. Sprinkle with grated cheese and put in a layer of haddock slices. Season with salt and pepper, chopped parsley and a tablespoon of lemon juice. Repeat this, making three layers of fish with sauce on top. Add grated cheese, minced parsley and paprika. Bake about 40 minutes in a medium hot oven.

Haddock is also nice when served a la Newberg. For this dish cut one an done-half pounds haddock fillets in inch pieces. Heat a tablespoon of butter in a pan and allow it to get very hot. Put the prepared fish in pan and season with salt and a dash of tabasco sauce or cayenne pepper and let fry very briskly for 2 minutes. Add one-half cup sherry flavoring and one-half cup of thin cream, one tablespoon finely minced pimento. Cook mixture 5 minutes more. Then thicken with four egg yolks diluted with one-half cup cream. Stir mixture until very hot, but not allowing it to boil. Season with paprika and serve on toasted squares of bread.

In addition to these combination dishes haddock makes nice salads and sandwiches. The fillets are first boiled and flaked.

Spoon onion, minced and three tablespoons mayonnaise. Combine these articles and serve on slices of buttered bread.

For a nice salad use cold flaked haddock and marinate in vinegar. Add chopped pimentos, Indian relish and lemon juice to taste. Serve on lettuce hearts with mayonnaise dressing.

Sandwich Filling.

A sandwich filling is made by heating slightly two eggs; add a quarter of a cup of sardines, boned and left in pieces; a quarter of a teaspoon each of paprika and salt and a tablespoon of lemon juice. Put this into a greased, small round tin, set it in a pan of hot water and bake until brown; spread on wheat bread.

Peanuts Are Wholesome.

Peanuts are nutritious. Combine with rice for croquettes, use them in cookies, and on toast as canapés. For the latter, chop two tablespoons and fry in two tablespoons fat. Mix with a chopped cucumber or a couple of pickles, a tablespoonful table sauce, salt and pepper. Spread on tiny squares of hot buttered toast.

Sausage and Sweets.

Boil sweet potatoes, peel, put through the ricer, add salt, butter, and a little brown sugar, a beaten egg, and enough cream or top milk to whip until very light and fluffy. Lastly, add half a cup or so of minced cooked sausage. Pile lightly in a buttered glass baking dish, and brown lightly in a hot oven.

Cream of Vegetable Soup.

Try a cream of fresh vegetable soup, using one-half cup each of diced celery, young carrots, water-cress, together with a few green peas and a sliced onion. Boil the vegetables until tender. Then add them, together with the water in which they were cooked to a quart of thin white sauce.

Insured for $11,000.
By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 11.—James Manzo, 25 years old, was arrested yesterday in connection with an investigation of an alleged arson ring which police said has been bombing homes here during the last two years. In a statement to police, Tony Miceli named Manzo as the man who set off a bomb in the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Schaeffer, Feb. 8.

When questioned by authorities, Manzo said he knew nothing about the explosions. An explosion which endangered the lives of persons in a nearby building wrecked the home of Manzo, Jan. 11. Miceli in his signed confession corroborated the confessions of Mr. and Mrs. Schaeffer, who said they had employed "this company" to destroy their residence on which they admitted having fire and explosion insurance totaling $11,000, paying him $650. Miceli, who said he was business agent for the alleged gang, also admitted having obtained the jobs of destroying the ringside arena and two other residences.

AIR FIRMS AT RADIO HEARING

Herbert Hoover Jr. Among Those Seeking Short Wave Channels.
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Radio Commission began a series of conferences today on the use of 39 short wave channels set aside for commercial aviation. Representatives from that field included Herbert Hoover Jr. of the Western Airways, Inc.

Chairman Robinson, announced the purpose of the conference was to co-ordinate views of various aviation operating companies, communication companies, and others interested in perfecting and establishing means for communicating between aircraft and ground stations along aviation routes. At the same time the commission is considering pending applications for construction permits and licenses for the operation of radio transmitting stations in connection with aeronautical activities.

Missouri Convict Hangs Himself

JEFFERSON CITY, March 11.—James T. McClanahan, 22-year-old convict serving 5 years from Kansas City, hanged himself in his cell in the penitentiary last night. McClanahan served a previous five-year term in the prison here from Kansas City and also a sentence in the California State Penitentiary. McClanahan came to the penitentiary Feb. 21, last, to serve his second term. He was convicted on two charges of first-degree robbery.

"Something Must Be Done To Offset Menace of World Shortage of Gold"—Fisher

Yale University Economist Says U. S. Faces A Situation Which May Bring the Metal Reserves Down to Legal Ratios.

By Irving Fisher
Professor of Economics, Yale University

Certain Continental Central banks are accumulating gold in their vaults, apparently with the intention of restoring gold as a hand-to-hand medium of exchange.

The situation makes for inelastic currencies at a time when the expanding needs of modern nations requires a stream of money to keep pace with the stream of goods.

The United States now faces a world situation which in the not distant future may bring gold reserves down to the legal ratios.

The determination to preserve our present prosperity by avoiding a future deflation as that of 1920 is firmly imbedded in the consciousness of our business and financial leaders.

The Economic Conference in Genoa adopted resolutions declaring that each country should help in economic reconstruction by stabilizing the value of its currency.

vent "wide fluctuations in the purchasing power of gold" that might "otherwise result from the simultaneous and competitive efforts of a number of countries to secure metallic reserves."

Need Better Adjustment.
Better equipped, perhaps, than most nations, the United States now faces a world situation which in the not distant future may bring gold reserves down to the legal ratios.

Further economies in gold adjustments are needed. Otherwise credit expansion may ultimately be prohibited by law, even when imperatively required by the steady expansion of business.

The flow of goods would then outrun the flow of money, the price level would fall, and we would have depression of trade, unemployment, and all the other evils which inevitably come from any considerable deflation.

A notable economy in the use of gold is suggested by the recent statement to Congress by Secretary Mellon that it would be inadvisable to act for the retirement of some $500,000,000 in national bank notes.

In a recent analysis of the discretionary powers lodged in the Federal Reserve Board to retire the issue of national bank notes, Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks calls attention to the fact that they are secured, up to 95 per cent of the total issue, by United States government bonds.

But if the 2 per cent consols and Panama 2s that back them were called, the national bank notes would have to be converted, to meet the continuing demands for currency, into Federal Reserve notes with 40 per cent gold backing.

That, Prof. Jenks points out, would reduce the reserves needed for expansion of bank credit by some $240,000,000. Secretary Mellon gives no reason for his recommendation that retirement of the national bank note issue be postponed.

Gold Economy Wanted.
It would seem almost imperative that the bond-secured national bank notes of the United States should be preserved in spite of their deficiencies as an ideal currency. They have been condemned on the ground that they constitute an inelastic currency. They are not entirely inelastic, instead, they are pervasively elastic, contracting when the demands of industry and trade require an expansion of the currency and expanding when contraction is required. This is a very dangerous quality in any currency, and for that reason it was the intention of the framers of the Federal Reserve Act to eliminate this pervasively elastic type of currency from our monetary system.

At the present time, however, it seems inadvisable to push for the retirement of these bank notes. The need to economize the available gold supply and to spread it efficiently so as to meet the currency demands makes it necessary to preserve, for the present at least, this bond-secured type of bank note. If the Federal Reserve Act is revised so as to permit the issuance of reserve notes secured, not by government bonds, but by acceptable commercial paper, we can then rid our system of these unsatisfactory old national bank notes.

Meanwhile, something must be done to offset the menace of a world shortage of gold. The deflation of 1920 was exemplary. The determination to preserve our present prosperity by avoiding such deflation in future is firmly imbedded in the consciousness of our business and financial leaders.

It is realized that the credit of the nation depends primarily on its untrammelled productive power. The will to keep it untrammelled is not lacking, and the way is in full view.

INFLOW OF GOLD

By Irving Fisher

The retirement of our National Bank notes in the present period of gold loss will amount to a further reduction of gold reserves. Substitution of Federal Reserve notes requires a 40 per cent gold reserve—an equivalent gold withdrawal of $240,000,000. The deflationary effect on business would follow closely.

COMMODITY PRICES
LITTLE CHANGED

Farm Products, Textiles and Metal Products Make Moderate Advances.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Leather, oils and rubber were conspicuous among the more important commodities which showed greatest price weakness last week. These were the principal factors in the drop in the indexes for the hides and leather and miscellaneous groups.

Most of the other commodity groups showed slight price softness, but farm products, textiles and metal products made moderate advances against the general downward tendency.

Below are indexes showing level and movement of wholesale prices for various groups of commodities:

DOLLAR PURCHASING POWER
SHOWED GAIN LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, March 11.—Against last week's wholesale commodity prices showed little change, seemingly being in balance at about the average level of 1928, which as it happens is the exact point registered by the second index.

European prices showed a tendency to strengthen, particularly those of France.

Fluctuations in the general wholesale price level and in the purchasing power of the dollar are given below for the United States for various methods, based mainly on Dun's quotations. The average for the year 1928 is the base used.

VALUE OF BOND SALES ABOUT SAME AVERAGE AS WEEK AGO

NEW YORK, March 11.—Bond prices were on the whole quite firm on the New York Exchange last week, the index ending off only one-tenth of a point.

On Monday the list showed no net change from the preceding week's close, but on both Tuesday and Wednesday there was a slight, but somewhat general weakness, only about half of which was recovered in Thursday's more active market.

The value of bonds changing hands last week averaged the same as the week before and was quite evenly distributed, except for a slight lull on Thursday.

Bond prices are now at the lowest point since November, 1926.

Business Weather

NEW YORK, March 11.—East of the Mississippi the wheat belt last week was largely thawed out, but frost remained in the ground further West. Alternate freezing and thawing took place there, but in the Southwest wheat showed growth and in some sections shows green.

Melting of snow in the Northwest showed fields had been well protected. In the main wheat belt the effect of winter killing is still uncertain. Higher temperatures were favorable in the South.

STOCK PRICE LEVEL

Close of Period, However, Showed Considerable Weakness—Daily Sales Value Up

NEW YORK, March 11.—Little encouragement for traders and dabblers was to be got from last Monday's closing of the stock market. Although the New York stock market is higher than for the week before, the close of the week showed considerable weakness and perhaps even more nervousness.

If the whole market had followed the coppers the bulls would have had lots of clover. This group registered an advance of eight and one-half per cent, with Utah the price skyrocket of the display.

Seven groups of stocks maintained a mean price level for the week which was higher than that of the week before, only foods, steels, stores and oils showing a lower level and all these declines were less than an index point.

A less encouraging aspect appears upon day to day analysis, however. Coppers, the big performers, had their best day last Monday and sagged moderately, but rather consistently as the week advanced. Motors and steels, very important groups in the prosperity picture, sagged similarly.

Movements Through Week.
Utilities, rails, miscellaneous industrials, stores, preferred stocks and bonds all had their low point earlier and strengthened somewhat toward the week's close.

European prices showed a tendency to strengthen, particularly those of France.

RAW MATERIALS INDEX
RANGED HIGHER LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, March 11.—Raw materials was the only rising group of commodities in last week's price movement, classified by economic origin and destination of commodities. Cattle was one of the strongest classes of goods in the raw materials category.

Semimanufactured goods produced by factories for further manufacture showed a marked weakness, with heavy leather conspicuous in the decline.

Finished goods ready to go to consumers maintained an unchanged level, the various price changes just canceling out their effects upon the index.

CAPITALIZATION

(As of March 7, 1929)

Common Stock (No. Per Value) 10,000,000 shs.*

The number of shares of Common Stock presently to be outstanding will consist of the 2,000,000 shares being publicly offered and any shares presently issued in connection with the acquisition of interests in other companies.

*Including 1,250,000 shares reserved for sale at $20 per share under options, granted or to be granted to the organization, bankers and management, exercisable on or after January 1, 1930, at the discretion of the Board of Directors.

upon exercise of these options being subject to increase in case of stock dividends on outstanding Common Stock. A part of these options is to be reserved for executive and technical personnel not yet in the Corporation's employ.

PURPOSE

"The Aviation Corporation has been organized primarily as a holding and development company for the aviation industry. The Corporation aims to make available to its subsidiary and affiliated companies technical and management cooperation, as well as financial resources beyond those which would be at the command of any single unit. While it is anticipated that its holdings will consist largely of the majority of the common stocks of other companies, it may also own interests in companies not controlled. In either case, such companies may be established for the purpose of conducting research, development, and related projects, and carry on experimental and development work directly for the Corporation. A part of the options on Common Stock will be reserved for the members of this technical division, which, it is expected, will be headed by Col. Thurman H. Bane, who served in a similar capacity as Chief of the Engineering Division of the Army Air Service, and will include, among others, at the outset Col. V. E. Clark, formerly Chief Aeronautical Engineer, U. S. Army, and C. Fayette Taylor, M.E., (in consulting capacity).

ORGANIZATION

The Aviation Corporation is at present negotiating for substantial interests in several large established companies in the field representing various phases of the industry. These acquisitions, it is expected, will be effected in the near future largely through the issuance of Common Stock of the Corporation and, in some instances, options to purchase Common Stock. The Corporation will receive $35,000,000 in cash as the proceeds of the present financing.

The officers of the Corporation will include W. A. Harriman as Chairman of the Board of Directors, Graham B. Grosvenor as President, Robert Lehman as Chairman of the Executive Committee, and George R. Hann as Vice Chairman of the Executive Committee.

In addition to the above officers it is expected that the Board of Directors will include, upon completion of the present financing, the following: Frank Andrews, Attorney, Houston, Tex.; L. W. Baldwin, Pres., Missouri Pacific Railroad Company; Harold O. Barker, Jesup & Lamont; William G. Beckers, Director, Allied Chemical & Dyestuff Corporation; C. K. Boettcher, Boettcher & Co., Denver; D. K. E. Bruce, W. A. Harriman & Co., Inc.; Matthew C. Brush, Pres., American International Corporation; Rogers Caldwell, Caldwell & Company, Nashville; Frederic G. Coburn, Sanderson & Porter, New York; W. W. Crocker, Vice-Pres., Crocker First National Bank of San Francisco; John W. Cutler, Edward B. Smith & Co., R. Stanley Dollar, Vice-Pres., Dollar Steamship Line;

HAZARDS OF INDUSTRY

Although the future of aviation as a manufacturing and transportation industry appears assured, there is no doubt that it will experience many vicissitudes before becoming thoroughly established and stabilized. Many individual companies will probably fail to fulfill the promise now held out for them, whereas new organizations, as yet obscure or not yet in existence, will become strong units in the industry. Moreover, many aviation companies are at present sacrificing the opportunity for immediate profits to the endeavor to prepare their organizations, in personnel, equipment and product, for what they may regard as the future demands to be met. It is believed that a company, such as The Aviation Corporation, with large resources of capital and personnel, will be able to be of constructive assistance to many aviation enterprises in developing their strength and earning power. However, any investment in the industry is hazardous, and must be regarded in the light of a speculation."

Agricultural Products Score Slight Advance During Week Under Review.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The purchasing power of the farmer's dollar went up last week by more than a full index number point. Although commodity prices were generally weak, agricultural products scored a slight advance, the declines being mainly among the non-agricultural commodities, thus farm purchasing power which is the quotient of the indexes of agricultural and non-agricultural prices registers higher than the week before.

Index numbers of farm purchasing power, and of agricultural and non-agricultural prices for various periods are given in the following table in which the average for 1928 represents 100:

British General Electric Head Explains Stock Plan

LONDON, March 11.—Sir Hugo Hirst, managing director of the British General Electric Co., today explained to shareholders the reasons for the company's decision to issue a new stock issue.

Hirst said that in seeking to issue a new stock issue, the company was not intending to increase its capital, but was merely seeking to provide a means of raising funds for the company's expansion.

Hirst said that the company's expansion was being carried out in a number of directions, including the development of new products and the expansion of its manufacturing facilities.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

GIVES STRANGER $500, LEFT HOLDING THE BAG

Stanley Horazy Breaks Open Satchel to Find Four $1 Bills Instead of $35,500.

Stanley Horazy, 40 years old, a cabinetmaker, reported to police yesterday that he was swindled out of $500 by two men, who induced him to place the money in a bag supposed to contain $35,000 to be given to the poor, an old form of swindle.

Horazy was permitted to keep the bag, while the swindlers kept the key. He waited four days for them to begin distribution of the funds, then cut open the satchel and discovered that it contained neatly clipped pieces of paper with four $1 bills as wrappers.

A stranger came to his home, 5711 Halls Ferry road, last Wednesday. Horazy told police, and offered to buy the property for $400. The offer was acceptable to Horazy and he accompanied the stranger, who said he would obtain the money from a friend.

At Broadway and Withers avenue they met another man, who was known to the prospective purchaser. The second man said he had $25,000 in a hand bag he carried. The money was to be distributed to the poor if he could find men to help him, the stranger said. The conditions were that those joining in the charity would have to put up an equal sum, and later would receive $2 for every $1 put up.

Horazy drew $500 from the Cass Avenue Bank and placed the money in the satchel. The prospective buyer of Horazy's home placed what purported to be $7000 in bills in the bag, which was given to Horazy. Yesterday Horazy decided something was wrong and opened the bag.

750 PEDIGREED DOGS ENTERED IN ANNUAL SHOW IN APRIL

St. Louis Animals to Compete for $1500 in Prizes; Exhibits to Be in Cages.

More than 750 pedigreed dogs from all sections of the United States will be entered in the seventh annual dog show, to be held at the Coliseum April 12, 13 and 14, under the auspices of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club. A number of St. Louis animals are expected to compete for the $1500 in special and class prizes.

A feature of this year's show will be an improved method of benching the dogs. Instead of exhibiting them in open stalls they will be enclosed in heavy wire cages, thus eliminating the possibility of visitors being bitten and the petting of the dogs, a practice to which most owners object.

500,000 IN GREEK CHURCH TO IGNORE HOLY SYNOD'S EASTER

Archbishop in Bessarabia Says His Following Will Celebrate May 5 Instead of March 31.

By the Associated Press. BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 11.—What was described as mutiny against the church took place in Bessarabia yesterday when 500,000 communicants of the Greek Orthodox Church announced through their spokesman that they would not observe Easter Sunday on March 31 as fixed recently by the Holy Synod.

Archbishop Kishinev, leader of the protesting worshippers, said they would observe Easter on May 5, in accordance with the Byzantine calendar, a custom which has prevailed for more than 600 years.

The new date for the observance coincides exactly with the Jewish Passover, and has aroused much agitation throughout Rumania since it was fixed by the Holy Synod.

MORE MEN GO TO CHURCH THAN HAS BEEN SUPPOSED

SUNDAY church services are attended by an average of 45 men to 57 women, it was revealed when Prof. Walter A. Maier, editor of the Walther League Messenger, St. Louis, made public the results of a nationwide survey conducted by his magazine with the Evangelical Lutheran Synodical Conference of North America. It is said to be the first survey of its kind conducted by any church in this country.

This is an unusually high ratio of men in attendance in view of the fact that 62 per cent of the investigators name business or occupation as the chief cause for non-attendance.

Contrary to popular belief, golf, baseball and automobiles are minor factors for not attending church, these being mentioned only in nine, eight and seven per cent reports, respectively. But 32 per cent of the investigators found that weather has a decided effect upon church crowds, while 20 per cent blame bad roads, and 16 per cent distance from church and poor transportation facilities.

Radio broadcasting is not a factor which is keeping many people from church, in Mr. Maier's opinion. "The objection is sometimes raised," he said, "that radio broadcasting of church services keeps people away from church, and it is true that individuals have used this as an excuse for non-attendance. Our investigators, however, not only report radio as a very minor factor, but they also point out that the tremendous opportunities which it affords are so manifold that the objections are dwarfed to insignificance."

While the average attendance is 43 men to 57 women, rural churches have the largest number of men, reports show, with 55 men to 43 women; but suburban congregations have the least men present.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

PETER RABBIT'S COUSIN JACK

Relations it is very plain Will seldom prove a source of gain.
—Old Mother Nature.

PETER RABBIT was impatient. Yes, sir, he was impatient. Wanderer the Evening Grosbeak, who had come from the West, had aroused Peter's curiosity. You know, it does take much to arouse that. Peter had asked Wanderer if he had ever seen any of his relatives, and Wanderer said, "Yes," he had seen Peter's cousin Jack often. Perhaps you can guess how this awakened Peter's curiosity. So Peter couldn't keep away from the Old Orchard.

At last Peter's opportunity came. Wanderer and Mrs. Wanderer were sitting in the old apple tree nearest to the old stone wall, and that was the place of all places that Peter would have chosen. You see, he always feels safe when he is close to the old stone wall. Peter is bashful sometimes, but not when he wants to satisfy his curiosity. So as soon as he discovered Mr. and Mrs. Wanderer, he reminded Wanderer of his promise.

"You said you would tell me about my Cousin Jack," said Peter.

Wanderer looked down and his eyes twinkled. "So I did, so I did," Peter said. "What was it that you want to know about your Cousin Jack?"

"All about him," replied Peter.

Wanderer pretended to be surprised. "You don't mean to tell me that you don't know anything about him?"

Peter nodded. "That's just what I mean," said he. "I have never seen him, so how should I know anything about him?" inquired Wanderer.

Peter grinned. "I don't have much to do with Old Man Coyote," said he. "We merely pass the time of day when he happens to peek into the dear Old Briar-patch. Now about my Cousin Jack—does he look like me?"

"Yes and no," replied Wanderer. "He looks a lot more like your Cousin Jumper the Hare. You see, he really is a Hare, not a Rabbit."

"Has he long legs like Jumper?" demanded Peter.

Wanderer gave a throaty little chuckle. "Of course, you mean the hindlegs," said he. "His legs are longer than those of Jumper. You think Jumper is pretty good when he is in a hurry, but you ought to see Jack. My, my, my, how that fellow can travel! He can travel as much faster than Jumper as Jumper can travel faster than you. That fellow is built for speed. He has to have speed. If he didn't, he wouldn't live long. You see, he lives right out in the open. If you want to know how fast he can go, ask Old Man Coyote. Old Man Coyote can travel pretty fast himself, but your Cousin Jack can beat him. It's fun to see him go up in the air."

Peter's eyes were opened very wide and he was sitting up with his two long ears standing straight up. "What do you mean by going up in the air?" said he.

"Just what I said," replied Wanderer. "Every once in a while he jumps way up high to have a look around over the tops of the grasses to make sure there are no enemies near. My, how that fellow can jump! There's where those long hindfeet come in."

the ratio being 59 to 61. Metropolitan churches are slightly above the average, with 44 men to 56 women.

"We have reason to believe," Prof. Maier asserted in commenting on this survey, "even in the absence of comparative figures, that both in point of general attendance and with reference to the number of men in church, the percentage is larger in the Lutheran Church than in other denominations. With regard to this point, Courtland Meyers, pastor of Tremont Temple (Baptist) in Boston, wrote two decades ago: 'Of the membership of the church, nearly three-fourths are women—the statement has remained unchanged that not 10 churches in the State of Massachusetts could count 10 men added in the last three years from the non-church-going population.' Nothing more recent than this could be found, but statements of other Protestant leaders in more recent years would seem to demonstrate that things have not changed particularly since Meyers wrote his book 'Why Men Do Not Go to Church' in 1897."

Maier finds a reason for this difference in an educated ministry. Biblical and doctrinal sermons, a rigid confessionalism, and careful child-training. With reference to this last point, the survey shows that congregations maintaining private elementary schools improve the average church attendance by almost 2 per cent.

A large percentage of the observers, in making suggestions for the improvement of church attendance, express their conviction that newspaper advertising, especially when backed up by radio, magazine, billboard and city-by-city publicity, is particularly effective.

English Girls Spurn Old-Fashioned Names

M. A. HALL, Tama Medara, Vauncey, Alys and Inella are the names of a few girls who will vote for the first time in Britain's coming election.

Modernist names for "flappers" are legion in the recently published register lists for the 1,000,000 newly enfranchised women.

The preponderance of women voters makes the next general election an uncertain affair, in the borough of Hammersmith, the first London borough to complete its new register, about 18,400 women have been added to the electorate and in consequence women voters have a majority of 10,000.

A Smart modern Face Powder

Gone are the days when "taking the shine off" was the whole purpose of face powder. A Piece of Her Mind

LADIES OF THIBET

WHENEVER I hear wives complaining of the paucity of the dowry right or of the difficulty of obtaining an absolute decree, my thoughts turn to the ladies of Thibet. In fact, the more I meditate about the women of that rocky, rugged land, the more I am inclined to wonder why the Woman's Party does not embrace there in a group.

For countless centuries the women of Lhasa and way stations have kept the masculine world under their highly unmanicured thumbs, a Thibetan husband's position in the household being somewhere between that of a pet canary and an ant in the sugar bowl. His unimportance is due largely to a social system which allows a woman to possess more than one husband. It is quite fashionable to have four, an arrangement fortunate for ladies who happen to be fond of the Thibetan equivalent of "Sweet Adeline."

This institution of plural husbands and the feminism that grew up as a result seem to be women, a considerable shortage of women, why this shortage occurs it is difficult to say. The author of "The History of Marriage," E. A. Westermarck, hazards the theory that in all countries where life is hard, more boy babies are born than girls. Judging from what we hear of Thibet this helps to make life considerably harder.

According to the reports of competent explorers, practically all the commerce of the country is in the hands of the women, the men serving chiefly as errand runners, bundle carriers and bits of local color. No man is allowed to sell any of the family goods without his wife's permission. Indeed, a husband does not even own the coral and turquoise ornaments that peep out among his neatly coiled beads. He is allowed to wear them only as long as his very much better half happens to be pleased with his conduct.

Nor do the women confine their selling to the little group of boys scouts given to them by holy matrimony. Nu Kuo, a State of Eastern Thibet, always has had a woman ruler, and in many of the other provinces the wife of the prince in charge is the real mainstay of the works.

THE supremacy of the Central Asia wife begins with the marriage ceremony. Throughout all the elaborate celebration the bridegroom or bridegrooms have a degree of importance that can be expressed only to the right of the bride. If, as generally happens, a girl marries a family of brothers, only the eldest is allowed to go through all the rites. Minor husbands take the oath in union at the end of the service, the general effect being that of the swearing in of a jury.

Although Thibetan girls are of the darker type of brunettes, their manner of garnering engagement and wedding presents is strongly suggestive of a blond temperament. In the southern part of the country the wedding ceremony is divided into two parts, with a gap of a year or so between. During this interval the near-husbands are expected to call weekly on their fiancée, and to give each time a convincing imitation of Santa Claus.

Rich presents are given to the bride's family when the final ceremonies occur, but all the bridegrooms get a list of gifts which will be delivered in from five to seven years, provided they make the wife happy throughout this period.

A main feature of the marriage ceremony is a promise from the official spokesman among the bridegrooms that he will not deprive the bride of her property or allow others to purloin her personal effects. The Thibetan version of "Oh, Promise Me," is then played on a copper-tipped thigh-bone, a white scarf is tossed over the heads of the couple, and rice and wheat are thrown at them by their loyal friends. Three days of feasting follow, the cost of which is naturally charged up to the bridegroom. I might add that these same harassed gentlemen are responsible for the purchase of the bride's trousseau.

Of course, no high-spirited Thibetan girl would marry a whole group if she disapproved of any of the members. If one of the younger brothers happens to lack charm, he is black-balled out of the wedding party. This to a young man is as severe a calamity as the blizzard of 1888. The only way he can hide his shame is to hurry off to the nearest monastery and enroll as a novice.

AFTER marriage, a man's chief worry is the fear of being divorced. No covering lady of the Victorian era ever dreaded the herid threat more than does a Thibetan husband. Such a mistress practically removes him from the social register, one of the results being a practical disappearance of invitations to buttered-tea parties.

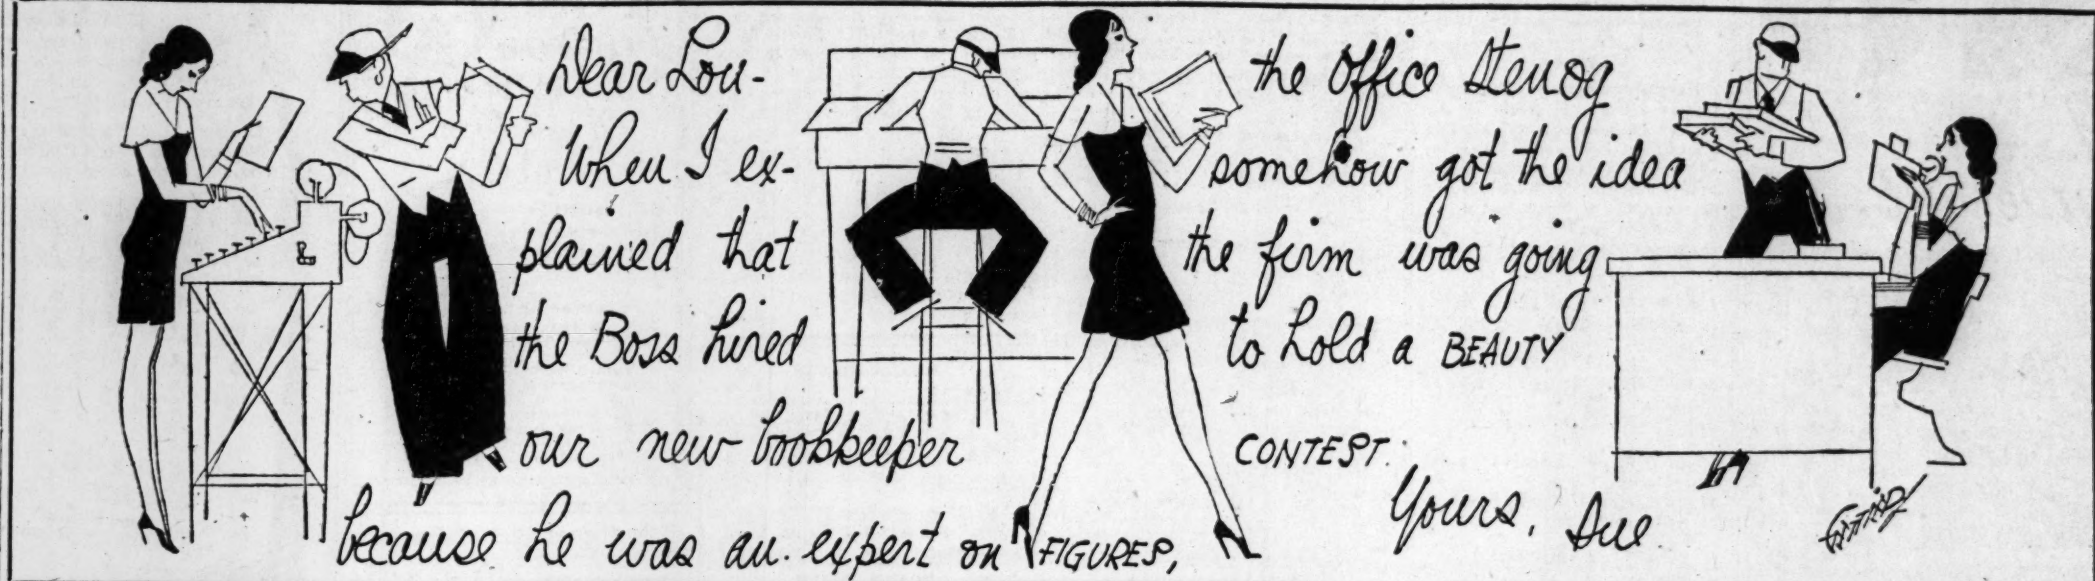

Sometimes this dire calamity descends like a pile-driver on a whole family at a time. When an elder brother dies a wife can divorce all the younger brothers by merely trying her finger to the hand of the departed one and then cutting the thread.

Polyandry is not universal in Thibet. Up near the high brim of China it is comparatively rare, and even in the midst of the many-husband belt there are occasional

THE PARIS MODE TODAY

As Seen in the Chanel and Viomet Collections.

Special cable by Pierre Le Baux, director of the Paris Fashion Board, and E. Winifred Boulter, associate director.

PARIS, March 10. THE only change in silhouette shown in the Chanel collection is introduced in the use of pelerine cape scarves and cape sleeve effects.

The Chanel sports ensembles are made of Mme. Chanel's own manufactured jersey in small fancy checks or zigzag patterns in quiet colorings. Some have short jackets and others have long ones worn over matching skirts and with contrasting blouses. The collection includes some of the usual long coats of simple silhouette cut with intricate seams and complicated workmanship. There are usually of tweed or fancy linge and are lined with foulard matching the simple gowns.

There are lovely printed chiffon afternoon gowns of black with bright-colored field flowers. They are, as in many collections, made with double tier flounces and many have the new pelerine collar, exclusive with Chanel. There are, of course, chiffon ensembles with coats to match the dresses. These are usually shadow printed in tones of beige, yellow and brown. A red and white foulard dress has a very wide and the extremely original touch of a red sequined scarf collar.

The Chanel evening ensembles have a distinct air of sophistication. They have cardigan jackets matching straight-line short evening gowns made entirely of sequined material in bright red, green and black. An evening gown of black tulle has a narrow skirt to just below the knee trimmed with a wide fan-shaped panel to the ground at the side. Many of the gowns have side draperies touching the ground, but the skirts are all short and straight all around. Chanel has not changed the waistline of her collection. She shows some very interesting new jewels of bright-colored, diamond-shaped stones in blues, reds and greens, and some necklaces of multi-colored flowers of tiny beads arranged in a fringe manner.

flounces under the shoulder. A gold taffeta coat has tapering flaps widening toward the hem lined with grayish blue.

Apart from a few slight modifications, the Viomet silhouette remains the same. The new notes are bias draping with few seams, scarf collars tied at the shoulder or draped around the neck, low waistlines and straight-line skirts. The Viomet coats are often trimmed with flat fur and the sleeves widen slightly at the wrist. There are coat style tailor-made dresses with roll collars and worn with woolen scarves. The sport and street dresses have usually of close-fitting skirts and bodices with much tucking in fanciful designs or draped to one side leaving the neckline loosely open. Others have scarves and are bloused at low waistlines over narrow leather belts.

Several of the afternoon gowns are of maroon satin of the characteristic bias cut, untrimmed except by drapery or knotted scarves. The printed crepe de chine dresses show variety. Several are made with flat apron tunics falling in two long points down the back. Viomet uses plain and fancy materials combined, such as jersey or shantung with printed crepe de chine. She uses pleating in a very decorative manner as is illustrated by one frock with its bodices pleated in tiers on one side and its skirt pleated in tiers on the other side. Some of her printed chiffon dresses have pointed panels attached to a straight under-dress.

Among the evening gowns satin and embroidered tulle pre-eminence and some printed chiffon is used. The chiffon dresses are rather narrow and have panels draped on the upper part of the skirt falling loose in dipping ends. The satin models have material draped on the bias with close-fitting corsets and full-flared skirts with points dipping low in the back. The tulle dresses are very long in the back and considerably shorter in the front and have narrow belts with one or two rows of straps.

A Recipe for Today

Sponge Cake

Four egg yolks, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1/2 cup flour, 1 1/4 teaspoons baking powder, 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Beat the egg yolks, water and lemon extract. Add the sugar and beat for two minutes. Add the salt. Measure the cornstarch and place in a cup; fill up the cup with sifted flour. Add this mixture to the egg yolk mixture. Add the rest of the ingredients and mix just enough to hold together. No beating should be done after the beating of the sugar and egg yolk mixture. Pour the batter into a cake pan which has been fitted with waxed paper. Bake in a moderately slow oven for 30 minutes.

Silks That Will Wash

IN buying material to sew into garments, the woman of limited means must look beyond the first time she sallies forth in her new spring outfit. She must stop to consider how it will appear a week, a month, a several months later.

Women are learning through experience that silk fabrics that contain fast dyes may be laundered over and over again without losing their freshness and color. That is probably one reason why the demand for washable silks is greater this season than ever before.

It is advisable, of course, to test a sample of the material you choose so as to be sure the colors are fast before you begin with your sewing. If lukewarm water does not affect the colors, it is safe to assume that you will be able to launder the garment with any good soap. Be sure to keep the water an even lukewarm temperature throughout the process of washing and rinsing. The soap should always be well dissolved before the material is immersed. When the garment is washed, roll it between two bath towels until it is almost dry. While it is still damp, turn it inside out and press it with a warm iron.

You can slice hard boiled eggs very neatly and easily if you heat your knife in very hot water and do not dry it before using.

NEW USES FOR OLD FOSSILS.

"AN old fossil, that?" You've heard people say it scornfully of any old fellow, generations behind the times. But people who know about fossils value them too highly to speak of them scornfully.

True, they are old, but to say that they are useless would be to forget that to them we owe our amber and our diamonds, not to mention those less beautiful but more useful things of modern life—coal, kerosene and gasoline.

Besides, the fossils give us those luxurious colors made by our best dyes, and the perfumes prized by flappers.

So, practically speaking, fossils are very up-to-the-minute parts of our daily lives.

Perhaps you are wondering what these sources of our many blessings really are. Fossils are pieces of very ancient animals and plants which have been preserved for us in the rocks.

Sometimes, the plants and animals are actually changed into stone. Sometimes oil is taken from their bodies by heat and pressure and sometimes they are preserved for us as impressions of pictures in the rock.

Coal is made of the stems and limbs of ancient tree ferns and tree mosses, dead these millions of years.

Amber is the preserved gum of trees in which insects of many kinds were trapped ages ago, and kept so perfectly that often the tiniest wings are still plainly visible today.

And the oil which is so important commercially today, was made countless centuries ago from the bodies of sea animals and the wood of plants which men have never seen, cooked by the heat and pressure of tons of rock weighing upon them for ages.

The limestone from which the very pyramids of Egypt were built, was made first by little sea creatures, too small to be seen with the naked eye, who made their shells of the lime in the sea water. Long after the creatures themselves died, their shells were kept as fossils which piled mountains deep on the floor ocean. These shells, having been changed into stone through the centuries, were later thrust up by convulsions of the earth, into

House Plants Require Soap and Water Bath

HOUSE plants should receive regular baths of soap and water, but it is to be noted that they differ from small boys in one important respect: The soap and water should remain on the plant two days before rinsing.

The advice on bathing house plants is from H. W. Becker of the New York Botanical Garden. Bathing replaces the effects of rain in cleansing plant pores of dirt. The soapy water should not be permitted to run into the soil, for it burns roots. During the wash the plants should be kept out of sunlight for two days.

Vanilla Ice Box Pudding

This is not an economical method of making this popular pudding but it is a very delicious one. One-half pound butter, 2 cups confectioners sugar, 4 eggs, vanilla extract. Cream butter and sugar and add egg yolks, one at a time. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla extract and then the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Line sherbet glasses with lady fingers and use the pudding in the center. Place over night in the refrigerator.

If you keep one of those inexpensive force pumps handy and use it for the kitchen and bathroom drain pipes it will mean a big saving.

It is wet enough to run down the surrounding paper. Some use it on the photograph itself, but it is dampened. Leave it on for a couple of days, cover with blotting paper, and then lift it up on the blotter for two minutes. This should draw out the grease. Repeat the process.

C-5—W. H.—To which clothes you have found difficulty in removing grease, use a table-spoonful of kerosene to a gallon of water. (Avoirdupois weight.) Make the solution very yellow. Dip the goods from the fire.) For things very yellow, use a solution of kerosene, clear limewater, and turpentine, in equal parts, shake together until creamy, then add a cupful to a boilerful of water, and boil for about half an hour. In boiling, fill the boiler with cold water at the time the goods are put in, to keep the heat, and take out clothes after 20 minutes boiling. Drop them into cold water, and wring them out, because it becomes warm from the hot clothes. Rub well using additional water. The goods will not well in this first water after boiling is most important, as there is a great deal of grease separated from the goods. Rinse a second time in luke warm water, and wring out. If the goods are the same heat, if blue is used. Remember the drier, and quicker the goods are dried, the less grease it is remnant sucs, which makes them yellow and it is almost impossible to remove it, if the goods are left to lie long.
